YANKS 10 MILES FROM BIZERTE

Here Are Japs' Own Pictures of Their Attack on Pearl Harbor

Second Thrust Threatens Key To Tunis Area

Tebourba Battle on, Americans Also Near Ferryville as Big Naval Base Comes Within Range of 'Long Toms' And French Gain In South.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—A French communique broadcast from the Algiers radio today said Moroccan Goumiers on the Mediterranean coast had reached Ras-Al-Koran, a cape about 10 miles northwest of Bizerte, and that other advanced elements had gained the eastern edge of the plain which spreads to the naval base.

(By Associated Press)

American and French troops driving along the Mediterranean coast have stormed within 10 miles of the great Bizerte naval fortress, dispatches from Allied headquarters said today, and a BBC broadcast reported that other U. S. forces were only about four miles from the key town of Tebourba on the central Tunisian front.

Still another American column, striking northeast from newly-captured Mateur, was reported within five miles of Ferryville, the dock area of Bizerte.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters said the Americans beat off Axis counter-attacks and "continued to make steady progress" toward Bizerte, while the British First army announced the capture of 4,000 Germans and 1,000 Italians since April 21.

French troops also scored further gains in the south.

A British broadcast said the Americans seized two more important heights in their advance on Tebourba, the gateway to Tunis.

Bizerte itself was reported within range of American "Long Tom" 155 mm. guns.

As the battle raged toward a climax, Axis controlled broadcasts for the third time in five days asserted an Allied sea-borne armada was moving eastward into the Mediterranean from Gibraltar—sailing to attack the Italian "invasion route" islands of Sardinia and Sicily, according to German military commentators.

The Paris radio broadcast a dispatch from La Linea, Spain, next door to Gibraltar, saying the convoy included 20 transports loaded with landing barges and armored vehicles.

On the Tunisian land front, Italian headquarters declared "the enemy with great forces and strong support from artillery and armored units renewed attacks which were repulsed everywhere by Axis troops."

Field dispatches said American infantry, surging ahead after their spectacular breakthrough at Mateur, were closing in on Ferryville, eight miles

Truce For Duration Looms In Coal Row

Negotiations Remain In Complete Stalemate

Union, Operators, Government All Stick To Positions But None Wants to Hamper War Effort.

BULLETIN

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Anthracite operators told hard coal miners today that they were willing to meet, "in substance," four of the United Mine Workers' contract demands, but ruled out those pertaining to wage increases.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The stalemated coal wage struggle stirred speculation here today that the 15-day truce under which the industry now is operating may be extended indefinitely with Harold L. Ickes serving as boss of Uncle Sam's coal fields—perhaps for the duration.

Once again, coal poured into the war production furnaces at full blast, with most mines on a six-day week, but neither the administration nor the United Mine Workers gave the slightest hint of yielding in their wartime wage and jurisdictional tug-of-war.

At the same time, few informed sources felt another walkout—such as that of last week-end—would follow expiration of the truce, although they conceded this was an optimistic view since UMW President John L. Lewis plainly has given no indication he would discourage another stoppage. These sources stressed that, despite their differences, none of the principals in the dispute want to damage the war effort by cutting off the coal supply.

Both President Roosevelt and the fuel administrator who now bosses the government-operated mines left no doubt yesterday they still consider the War Labor Board the only avenue for permanent armistice in the coal case. And Lewis stood just as

4-YEAR ESTATE TAX SUIT ENDS

Ohio Supreme Court Dismisses Appeal to Force Assessment of Black Properties.

A four-year legal fight to determine whether more personal taxes were due from the estate of the late Frank B. Black, millionaire Mansfield industrialist, was apparently at an end today, with the estate the victor.

The Ohio supreme court dismissed the appeal of County Auditor Norman E. Wolfe from lower court decisions enjoining him from re-assessing the personal property of the estate. The appeal was dismissed because of insufficient record.

The original action was filed in common pleas court here by Michael Hallabrin as a taxpayer. He contended that executors of the Black estate were responsible for taxes alleged due on the estate for that period. A state law, later ruled unconstitutional, had exempted the estate from payment of

Dog Quarantine Ends; Cites Slash In Rabies Cases

Richland county's 60-day quarantine on dogs ended today and Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, said it had "proved highly satisfactory."

When the quarantine was ordered March 6 by Dr. Wild seven cases of rabies were known in the county, but all of them have disappeared now, he said.

Hundreds of dogs were immunized against rabies or were kept tied during the 60-day period. A few reports of dog bites during the period were attributed to dogs whose owners had failed to comply with the quarantine, Dr. Wild said.

Two Mansfield youths were attacked last night, both by dogs that had not been immunized, police said. The victims were Richard Bollinger, 4, of 661 West Third street, who was bitten below the left eye, and Paul Haycock, 8, of 548 Wayne street, who suffered an injury to his left hand.

FIND MISSING MAN'S CAR HERE

Trail Holmes County Attorney, Prominent In Politics, To Mansfield.

Trail of a Millersburg attorney, prominent in Holmes county political circles, who left his home last Saturday led to Mansfield today but his whereabouts after being seen here still remained a mystery.

Police said an automobile owned by Atty. Carl Hopkins had been left in a downtown garage and that they had been unable to locate the owner here.

Authorities were asked to search for Hopkins last Saturday after his wife returned home and found a note stating that he was "going away" and that she would not see him again.

Yesterday, officers said, they were notified by Sheriff Harry Weiss of Holmes county that Hopkins had called his wife on the telephone from Mansfield and informed her that he was leaving the car in a garage here. He said he would mail the claim check to her, Weiss told officers here that Hopkins did not say where he was going.

Hopkins was secretary of the Progressive Discount and Loan company at Millersburg and was handling liquidation of the Holmes county Savings and Loan company.

Prominent in politics, he was unsuccessful candidate for state senator from the 17th-18th-19th-28th district on the Democratic ticket in the last election.

NAZI TESTIFIES

Says Detroiter Gave Funds To Aid His Flight.

DETROIT—(U.P.)—Lieut. Hans Peter Krug, captured Nazi flier, testified today that Theodore Donay, a Detroit importer, gave Max Stephan $20 to help finance Krug's flight from a Canadian prison camp.

Donay is on trial for allegedly concealing from authorities knowledge that Stephan, former Detroit innkeeper, committed treason in harboring the Nazi flier. Stephan already is under death sentence on conviction for treason.

Krug was questioned by Assistant U. S. Attorney John Babcock, who drew from him an admission that he accompanied Stephan to Donay's place of business shortly after his arrival here from Canada in April, 1942.

LONDON—American army headquarters in Britain today awaited details of the Iceland plane crash in which Lieut. Gen. Frank Maxwell Andrews, commander of all United States forces in the European theater of operations, was killed Monday.

Bishop Adna Wright Leonard of the Methodist Church in America also was killed in the crash. Bishop Leonard, a native of Cincinnati, went abroad last month to tour American military bases as representative of 31 American Protestant denominations.

Other prominent officers of the armed forces were aboard the Andrews plane when it crashed in a remote spot in Iceland after

3 Members Absent, Council Delays Action on Streets

Unable to pass emergency legislation because three members were absent, city council adjourned last night until May 13 after voting one resolution and receiving eight protests against street repair assessments against private property owners.

Since council must meet in special session next week anyway to act on legislation for the repair of South Main street, Lexington avenue, and Marion avenue, members decided it would be better to wait until then to vote other street ordinances as emergency measures so they can go into effect immediately. Seven of the nine members must be present to enact emergency legislation.

Absent from the session were Councilman C. N. Shultz and Roy Vaughn, Republicans, and Mike Mihalick, Democrat.

Only business transacted last night was the repeal of a resolution to resurface Marion avenue as a city project and the approval of a new agreement to cooperate with the state in resurfacing the same street from Glessner to Cline avenues.

Mayor W. J. Locke told council that plans for state participation in the Marion avenue project and the resurfacing and widening of South Main street and Lexington avenue probably would be submitted to the city early next week, in

Take Fight for Ruml Tax Plan to Senate

Advocates Predict Year's Abatement After House Passes Withholding Levy, 75 Per Cent Forgiveness.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Undismayed by two defeats in the house and unsatisfied by the house-approved measure to wipe out 75 per cent of 1942 individual income liabilities, Ruml plan advocates today carried their battle to the senate—which they predicted would pass the full tax year abatement bill.

Chairman George (D., Ga.) summoned the senate finance committee into session Thursday for speedy action on tax legislation.

The house late yesterday climaxed a historic party scrap by passing, 313 to 95, a compromise pay-as-you-go bill. Written by Representative Robertson (D-Va.) and Forand (D-R. I.), it would wipe out the 1942 income tax liabilities completely for about 90 per cent of the taxpayers—numbering over 33,000,000 persons—and impose a 20 per cent withholding levy against wages and salaries, effective July 1.

The Democratic majority narrowly escaped its worst drubbing in a decade as it managed to beat down the Republican-backed modified Ruml plan, 206 to 202. A month previously the Democrats beat the bill 215 to 198.

The Republicans then swung swiftly behind the Robertson-Forand compromise, and the house sent this legislation to the senate.

To ease the transition to pay-as-you-go, the bill abates the 6 per cent normal and 13 per cent first bracket surtax on the 1942 income of all taxpayers, erasing about $7,600,000 of the $10,000,000,000 of the total. It removes the 1942 tax liability

THREATEN TO QUIT OCD TASKS

Air Wardens, Police Hit Lack of Identification, Say They Encounter Trouble.

Complaining that they have not received adequate equipment, a number of Mansfield's air raid wardens and auxiliary police and firemen today had threatened to refuse to participate in the next air raid alert unless they get arm bands and car insignia identifying them as OCD workers, it was learned.

The complaint was turned over to Mayor W. J. Locke as chairman of the civilian defense council.

Estimating that nearly half of the wardens and fire watchers lacked arm bands and insignia for their cars and helmets, Glenn W. Marriott, chief air raid warden, said failure to provide the equipment "threatens to interfere with an otherwise well organized civilian defense unit."

Wardens and other OCD workers said that without identification they had experienced diffi-

The committee, after adopting amendments that would have loaded the measure down with other tax exemptions, decided to postpone action on it indefinitely. A petition signed by a majority of the house will be necessary to restore life to the bill.

After accepting one amendment after another, the committee refused 8 to 7 to approve a motion by Rep. Paul R. Barnes (R-Frank-

ENTRENCHED: Only Landings Can Oust Japs From Aleutians

BULLETIN

WITH THE U. S. ARMY AIR FORCE IN CHINA, May 4—(Delayed)—(AP)—The heaviest American bombing onslaught from a Far Eastern base of the 14th United States Army Air Force struck today against Japanese-occupied Hainan island in the South China sea and the dock area of Haiphong, French Indo-China.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The navy reported today that American medium and heavy bombers and fighters raided Japanese installations on Kiska nine time Monday. Fires were started in the enemy camp and hits were observed in other areas.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—When the time comes to throw the Japanese out of the Aleutian islands, authorities here agree, the job will have to be done by American troops landing under fire and fighting with guns, bayonets and grenade until the last enemy surrenders or dies.

The blow might fall this spring or summer. It is certain to fall when the Pacific war reaches a point where Kiska would be useful as a base for American operations, such as air attacks on the Kuriles islands strung out north of Japan proper.

Despite months of bombing, the Japanese are believed to be firmly entrenched on Kiska and their supporting base on Attu island, 180 miles to the west. The aerial poundings to which they have been subjected are not and cannot be sufficiently heavy to force them to withdraw.

Yet the bombings constantly consume their resources, and evidence that at times they may be hard-pressed was seen in yesterday's disclosure of the size of the warship escort with which they unsuccessfully tried to push through two transports late in March. Those two ships, carrying supplies and possibly fresh troops, were guarded by two heavy cruisers, two light cruisers and six destroyers.

Although badly outnumbered, an American force of one heavy cruiser, one light cruiser and four destroyers intercepted the expedition on March 26, dam-

COSTLY: RAF Loses 30 Planes In Powerful Raid on Dortmund

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—A powerful force of Britain's big four-motored bombers delivered a heavy saturation raid last night on the German industrial city of Dortmund from which 30 planes failed to return, the air ministry announced today.

Visibility over the target was good, except for a slight ground haze, said a communique, and first reports indicated the bombing was "well concentrated."

It was the first major attack of the war on Dortmund, which is the main easterly transport exit from the Ruhr valley and its teeming industries.

The German high command said major damage was caused to Dortmund buildings and that 36 raiding planes had been destroyed.

The raid was the RAF's first night foray over Germany since it finished off a blazing April offensive with a heavy attack on Essen last Friday night and followed by a smashing daylight assault on industrial targets in Antwerp by United States Flying Fortress.

It was indicated that a great fleet of the four-engined bombers had made the 350-mile trip to Dortmund and observers estimated several hundred tons of explosives probably had been dropped on the city, which has a normal

What to Do When Hair Turns Grey

By MME. QUI VIVE

Every hair on your head is like a glass tube the size of a thread. Within the shaft are pigment cells that determine the color of your hirsute mop. When these cells disappear, the hair is white. What becomes of them or why they evaporate nobody knows.

Few women accept these changes with fortitude. They don't like the idea of having frosted tiara, even though the birthdays may justify it. Women who are prematurely grey consider it an affliction, especially if the husband remains young looking. Nearly all of them have flirted with the idea of getting ducked in the dyepot. There are two ways. One must make a choice: accept the silvery state and live with it as happily as one can, or toddle to the beauty shop for restoration of the virgin color and be a slave to the dyes forever after.

Hereditary tendencies are frequently noticed. Premature greyness runs in families, especially if both parents go grey early. It is believed that a diet deficiency may be the cause of many cases, that certain vitamins may be found that will restore the natural shade.

Sickness, worry, sleeplessness, lowered vitality seem to affect the condition of the hair. Yet, healthy individuals will suddenly find themselves grey or bald.

To forestall what the future may have in store for one's glory crest the hair should receive fastidious and continued attention. This care should start in childhood with a weekly shampoo and daily brushing. The shampoo must be thorough. We fear that often the shampoo agent is not completely removed. The crown is without luster, shafts cling to each other. When washing has been properly done, every shaft has sheen and luster.

Some beauty shop operators are not as painstaking as they might be. If, after a ..ead Ducking, you find white deposits on the bristles of the brush or the teeth of the comb, seek another pulchritude parlor. It's easy enough to friction in the lather; the trick is in getting it all out. One is dealing with oil and dirt, a combination that is not dislodged without effort.

When the hair is sick, work on the scalp. The blood streams are the caterers that bring nourishment to the silky threads. When they loiter, the growth suffers, shafts become brittle and break.

Spread out fingers and thumbs. Do circles, lift and pinch the flesh until it is warm and glowing. Give the hair 100 strokes of the brush. Now don't squeal about weakening your finger wave. Brushing is a must on your beautifying schedule.

The principle of the pneumatic tire was patented in England in 1845 and in 1847 in the United States.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

John Hayes looked at me helplessly, as he asked "What am I to tell her?"

"Tell her the truth," I said, "that you came to me and delivered her message, that I told you Mrs. Bickett was ill and could not be disturbed for a day or two."

"That may satisfy her," he said dubiously.

"There is nothing she can do about it if it doesn't," I told him. "She cannot get at me or at Mrs. Bickett, and as long as you have secured a promise from me to send an answer to her, she will not try to punish you."

"I hope you're right," he said.

"I'm sure I am," I told him, "and I am sure of something else also. She was playing a colossal game of bluff. For instance, Jack Bickett has not filed suit for divorce, I know that to be a fact."

"I know she was," he said, "but she claims to have proof of something dreadful—which never happened, but which could ruin me."

"Let me assure you again," I said, "that she has proof of nothing, either against Mrs. Bickett or against you. You may be sure also that her every movement is being trailed, and that if she should try to do anything unpleasant to you, she would be stopped at once."

"I can make no specific promise now," I went on, "for I do not know my father's plans, but I am virtually sure that Ruth Hayes will not keep her appointment with you day after tomorrow, because before then she will be made powerless to harm anybody."

Offers to Help.

He evidently thought he saw something sinister in my promise, and looked shocked.

"Do you mean she will — be dead?" he asked tremulously.

"No, not now," I said. Eventually, if she is guilty of all we think she is, she may pay the extreme penalty, but for the present she will only be put where she cannot do anyone the slightest harm."

"Thank God!" he said fervently. "And now, my dear Mrs. Graham, I know how busy you are. Is there anything else I can do for you?"

"Not a thing," I told him, "and thank you so much for coming to me."

"It is I who should be grateful to you," he said. "But I do wish to know something. How is Mary?"

"She is getting along famously," I said, keeping up the fiction of Mary's cast-bound ankle. "She is seeing no one, however, but I will tell her you asked about her."

"Give her my very best, please," he said, rising, but I waved him back to his chair.

Spencer Consulted.

"I cannot let you go for another minute or two," I said. "My father will want to know what you have told me, but I do not think it will be necessary for you to see him. However, he must decide that: Will you please wait here until I come back?"

I did not wait for an answer, but hurried into the other suite.

My father rose quickly as I entered.

"Well?" he said.

I told him swiftly what John Hayes had told me, and what I had told him to do.

"Do you want to see him?" I asked, and flushed with pleasure at his reply.

"No, it will not be necessary," he said. "You have covered the ground thoroughly. Tell him we may need his testimony against this woman later, but—it will not be public testimony."

Independence No Barrier To Marriage

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Did you happen to see a newspaper picture of a girl with the caption, "Sky Stowaway?" Her name was Marion Darling, and she was a member of the Women's Auxiliary of the Royal Canadian Flying Corps.

This girl with big appealing eyes and a fragile daintiness, hid on a cargo transport and hopped the Atlantic from Newfoundland to see her husband in Britain. And for once, at least, the authorities, looking at the slip of a girl who may never have heard of the motto, "All for love and the world well lost," failed to be hard-boiled.

Ordinarily, the stowaway is given short shrift. He, and far less frequently she, is put on a carrier —ship or plane— and returned to the port of embarkation. Whether it was the girl's beauty or the breath-taking quality of her romantic adventure, the authorities agreed Mrs. Darling might stay and visit her husband to whom she had not long been married. Somewhere in Great Britain they enjoyed a belated honeymoon, before the husband left for another assignment far from both Canada and Britain.

One of the reasons given for the tremendous increase in divorce, which has reached an all-time high in this country, is the new-found economic independence of women. Not so with the little Atlantic-ocean hopper. She held down an excellent post, apparently being A. W. O. L. and losing it, didn't measure against the chances she was taking as a stowaway, to meet her Beloved.

Too bad that the happiest relationship that can exist between men and women has a price tag on it. At a meeting I attended in a government auditorium in Washington a little while ago, I heard a nationally-known woman say that defense workers who weren't stocking up on costume jewelry were buying divorces. And, she continued, "the day of marriage as a meal ticket is over. The Little Woman can now find herself a Government job and dispense with a domesticated grouch."

A few of us present, who didn't think badly at all of marriage, husbands, homes, children, reminded her that the Government had semi-sponsored a clinic in that very building which, shorn of a few economic frills, might have been called "To catch your man, look your best."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

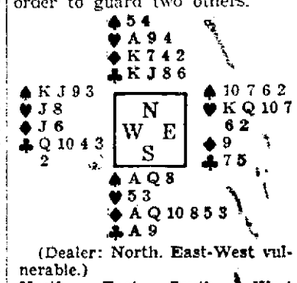
"The Authority on Authorities"

SHORT SUIT WORKS, TOO

Squeezes are ordinarily operated by the final card of a long suit, on which the opponents have already had to make a series of discards until finally one of them is disastrous. In some rare cases, they can be operated by a short suit, perhaps a suit in which you take only a single trick, the one which does the squeezing. This play can be indexed by previous discards on a different suit, showing that one opponent has given up his protection in one suit in order to guard two others.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1♦	Pass
2♣	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 NT

Just a little hazardous, South's No Trump bid, but a good gamble, as North was pretty sure to have something of value in his hand outside of his club suit, and the most likely place was hearts.

West was scared away from clubs by North's bid of the suit, so opened the spade 3. After the Q won that, South decided to go all out for as many tricks as possible. He came to his hand with the diamond A, scored the club A and then tried the finesse of that suit while it was without risk. The J won, next the K, and then came the balance of the diamonds, while he watched the discards. East's first two sloughs were the heart 7 and 2, to show he intended to protect that suit. West responded by trashing his heart 8, heart J and then the club 10 and spade 9.

With his best two spades and club Q left, West was ruined then when South led the heart 5 toward the A, having held also the spade 5 and club 8 in the dummy, and the spade A-8 in his own hand. If West had discarded his club Q on this heart, the 8 would have won the twelfth trick in dummy and the spade A would have been the thirteenth. So he discarded his spade J. Thereupon South came from the dummy with the spade 5 to the A dropping the K, and the 8 scored the final trick. The squeeze had been scored by a suit in which only one trick was taken by the squeezer.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

If North bids nothing except No Trumps and South diamonds, what is East's soundest lead if North winds up in 3-No Trumps, and what if he gets into 6-No Trumps? Why, in each case?

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

Fighting Enemies In the Cabbage Patch.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
(Released by Central Press Assn.)

The cabbage has many insect enemies and some disease which threaten it in the Victory garden but the foresighed gardener can easily prevent these threats to a full harvesting of this succulent vegetable.

The cabbage worm is a persistent enemy and must be fought in the cabbage patch for most of the summer. When the small white or yellow butterfly, illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, is noticed hovering over the cabcabe plants it means that cabbage worms will soon put in an appearance. The cabbage worm, also illustrated, is green in color and about 1¼ inches long. These worms are hatched from eggs laid by the cabbage butterfly.

The cabbage worms can be destroyed soon after hatching by the use of a nicotine spray. Later as the worms grow they can best be killed by spraying with arsenate of lead. This spray, however, should only be used on young plants. To combat the worms on larger cabbage plants use tobacco, pyrethrum or rotenone dusts.

The cabbage looper is another pest which must be guarded against. The looper is the worm of the gray moth commonly found in the garden.

As illustrated the looper is so named because of its habit of "looping" its body as it crawls about on a plant. The looper not only eats cabbage leaves but the foilage of peas, beets, celery, lettuce, tomatoes and poatoes.

The same sprays and dusts used to control the cabbage worm can also be used to check the work of the looper.

YOUTH CRIME WAVE? NOT AT ALL, HE SAYS

Statistician Reports Boys and Girls Obey Laws Just as Well in War Time.

(By United Press)

CHICAGO Statistician Wayne McMillen produced figures and arguments today to show that boys and girls are as law abiding in wartime as in peace

Sociologists generally may be worried about a wartime juvenile crime wave but not McMillen who is a professor of social administration at the University of Chicago and a former president of the American Association of Social Workers

"A juvenile crime wave' he asked 'There's nothing that remotely approaches it'

McMillen cited three pieces of evidence

(1) Federal Bureau of Investigation fingerprints do not show an increase of criminal records for persons under 21

(2) The New York state department of social welfare found that in 13 counties with an expanded population because of war industries there had been an increase in juvenile delinquency but in 39 counties showing no expansion of war industries there was an actual decrease

(3) Five hundred reports on juvenile delinquency received by the United States Children's Bureau from juvenile courts show some increases and some decreases

McMillen vigorously penciled a pitch black question mark after the increases reported in his last two examples He said there was doubt as to whether these increases are real or apparent because of the great population changes

"If you could adjust the figures for crime increases in certain areas" he said "to the increases in population there you might find the actual figures on crime much smaller or even turned into decreases'

Further questioning reports of a juvenile crime wave McMillen said it has been brought into the limelight by stories of England's increase in crime by the sudden rise in statistics since the government has gone deeper into private lives by the successful preventative steps taken by the children's bureau and by the increased activity and aggressiveness of police in wartime

Fear that there would be a repetition here of England's crime rise which he said began not with the war but in 1933 forced Americans to focus their attention on the problem

'Many believed what they feared McMillen said instead of analyzing the facts'

Praises Kenny Treatment of Poliomyelitis

MEMPHIS Tenn (INS) Dr W D Burkhalter assistant health officer of the Memphis and Shelby county health department has termed 'the Kenny method for treatment of poliomyelitis victims the finest method treatment yet devised

Dr Burkhalter described tests of the system devised by Australian Nurse Sister Kenny as most heartening and refuted criticism which has been directed against her from some quarters

'Making a direct answer to Dr H R Carroll orthopedic surgeon of St Louis who told the American Public Health association that the treatment does not justify its current wild enthusiasm" Dr Burkhalter replied that parents were correct in placing confidence in the method of treatment

The enthusiasm with which the Kenny method of treatment for poliomyelitis victims is being received by parents of American children can be understood he said and pointed out Dr Burkhalter declared

GOOD DEED DONE IN NAPLES REPAYS RECRUIT IN U. S. ARMY

By International News Service

FORT WARREN Wyo It's a small world This old saying became a reality recently at Fort Warren

Two soldiers at the post who parted ways in a foreign country back in 1931 held a reunion that was one chance in a million

Tony Erdmisch and Foster Vary felt it was a very slim chance that they would ever be reunited but that chance turned up when Private Erdmisch, a new recruit at the post reported to his platoon sergeant to discover that he was none other than Vary

Remember me?' Erdmisch asked slyly

You're the guy that saved me from a fleecing in Naples An elephant never forgets exclaimed Vary cordially recognizing his benefactor immediately

Recalling their first encounter it appears that Vary armed with a Baedecker and a letter of credit had just arrived in Naples fresh from Rome and hungry as a wolf

Unacquainted with the exotic complications of Italian currency he was about to succumb to a cafe proprietor's demand for an exorbitant number of lire in exchange for a bowl of minestrone when Erdmisch an employe of the restaurant sidled up to him to put him wise to the Neapolitan policy of robbing the unwary tourist

Whereupon Vary indignantly reduced the patrone to a quivering pulp with a star-spangled homily, in which he quoted the Bill of Rights, the Eighth Commandment, and some salty vernacular before abandoning the unfortunate creature with a paltry number of centimos to pay for his soup and a hex upon his head.

Meanwhile Sergt Vary repays a debt by making the soldier doubly welcome in Company L

Some Army Tips On Keeping Shoes In Good Condition

FORT BENNING Ga (INS) Shoe doctors at Fort Benning's cobbler shop who can repair 2000 pairs of shoes a day offer a few tips to harried citizens who fear they will not be able to get by on three pair of brogans' a year

Lieut Ross W Crossley, in charge of the shop under Col Stephen B Massey, chief of the post's Supply division, asserted that miles and months of wear could be added to the life of just a plain pair of shoes if the "10 commandments" adopted by the repair shop were followed.

The commandments are

1 Do not let shoes wear through repair them when necessary

2 Do not use water to clean shoes use a good brush and rag

3 Use a dobbing solution where possible to waterproof shoes which gives longer life to leather

4 Change shoes daily as perspiration keeps them damp and causes the leather to depreciate

5 Never soak new shoes in water as it impairs quality and service of the leather

6 Always keep an extra pair of shoes free from dirt grease and grime to increase the life of leather

7 Never stuff socks into shoes

8 Never dry shoes near excessive heat as the heat tends to draw and crack the leather and weakens the stitching

9 Expose wet shoes to cool fresh air and do not store shoes in closets bags or lockers where air cannot get to them

10 Use a high grade polish or shoe cream where possible as this will make the shoes better appearing and will lengthen the life of the leather

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

STOCKHOLM—(By Wireless)—In Opera Square, across from my hotel window, I can see a statue of King Charles XII of Sweden, with arm extended pointing a sword eastward toward Russia. For two and a half centuries the Swedes have remembered this national hero who led the Swedish army in a brave but disastrous campaign against the Russians.

Thus the traditional Swedish fear of Russia has deep roots, but I think there is a mistaken tendency in America to overweigh this tradition. Ever since El Alamein the Swedes have been convinced that the Allies would win, and a majority of the people want them to win.

Clapper

Recently there has been some fear here that Russia and Germany might make a separate peace. German propaganda has been playing on that theme, causing increasing anxiety here. Hence Stalin's May day adoption of the unconditional surrender objective brings a sense of relief among many here.

Fear of a separate peace has been voiced in the newspaper Social Demokraten, organ of the Social Democrats, who control the government. Social Demokraten says that no responsible opinion in Germany now expects the war to end in a German victory. It says that the third Reich, while surrendering hope of an absolute victory, now aims at a separate Russo-German peace, which is reflected in the German press.

Moscow's abrupt action toward Poland has added greatly to fears that preparations for a separate peace were being made. The liberal paper Dagens Nyheter here said that through the Polish incident Stalin had let his allies understand that the Soviet was waging her war according to her own ideas, and that she would establish such a peace as suited her best.

I happened to be in London when the Polish affair developed, and I am certain there was deep concern in that capital about Russia's attitude. So Stalin's May day declaration vastly improved the situation all around. This rather deflates an amazingly effective German propaganda maneuver, which built up the Polish crisis to the point where the Russians were goaded into retaliation. That in turn was built up into a war of nerves regarding the imminence of a separate peace.

German propaganda is active here, under the direction of Hans Thomsen, former Nazi minister to Washington, who is now minister to Sweden. The German legation directly facing the royal palace, flies the swastika from the mightiest flagpole on the embankment here. This establishment is supposed to have a staff of between three and four hundred, although many of them are not listed as officially connected.

It is an odd sensation to sit down with a friend for a drink and discover a party of Germans moving in to sit at the next table. Strange persons come up to Americans, introduce themselves as newspaper reporters, and begin asking pointed questions about America. Newly arrived Americans must be on their guard against talking to strangers.

It should not be inferred that the Swedish government is especially lenient or partial to the Nazis. The United States Office of War Information has its own establishment here, which is very active in the United Nations' cause. The newspapers co-operate in publishing material friendly to the Allied cause.

The nub of it, so far as I can size it up thus far, is that no obstacles are put in the way of our side. Certainly all the Americans I have talked with are warm in praise of the attitude of the Swedish people and officials, and consider that here they are among real friends who, regardless of their traditional attitude toward Russia, want to see no separate peace and want an Allied victory.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—I think I mishandled an idea recently in imputing to hypothetical 18-year-old American draftee named Joe Doakes, jr., the cynicism, dishonesty and subtlety, as distinguished from frankness, which has characterized the only government of their nation that the 18-year-olds of today have ever known.

True, Joe Doakes, jr., and the rest of his generation would be a sorry lot of little blatherskites if they had derived their ethics and principles only from their national government during the 10 years since they were 8 years old, but the saving fact is that the influences of the American home, the church and the school and the innate decency of the breed have enabled them to resist the evils of governmental example. In writing of the Doakes kid I did not believe he had been so contaminated but intended only to suggest what a dreadful new generation of Americans we would have just now in this 18-year-old group if American children actually did model themselves after the statesmen and hosses, the government of their time, as, fortunately for them and the nation they do not.

Pegler

I believe that, unlike their government, they reject the proposition that a gang of criminal politicians of Jersey City have a legal right to practice highway robbery on truckmen passing through. Even the supreme court, in a decision of shocking wickedness, has held that congress deliberately and with knowing intent conferred that right upon them as a legitimate activity of union labor. If these kids were no more decent than the supreme court they would all be highwaymen themselves for there is no legal definition of a labor union and any gang of five or more may call itself a union and under the supreme court's interpretation of congressional intent, may rob with official approval.

If trick and subterfuge as practiced in the case of the captive coal mines were common conduct among this younger generation there would be neither discipline nor honesty in the army and no man would trust another's word. The fine character of the fighting services is proof enough that not only 18-year-olds but their elders have held themselves to a code of conduct and morals higher than that by which they are governed from above.

The boys and girls of this generation during their growing years saw big men use the power of government to whip their political enemies in the manner of the meanest little ward politicians, saw an attempt to pack the courts and could not fail to observe that the reformist attitude of Harold Ickes was but a gaudy pose when he huddled with Frank Hague and Ed Kelly of Chicago whom he had denounced with loathing, to put over the third term and keep himself in luxurious power in Washington.

My reflections on the Doakes kid were touched off by the remark of a mother with a son 13 years old who sighed that the New Deal was the only government the boy had ever known and that in the event of a fourth term he would come to fighting age ignorant of any other kind of government or political morals.

However, the boy lives in a decent home where he has been taught honesty and straightforwardness and he looks to a day when like his two older brothers, he will be a captain in the army. The two brothers also grew up through an important phase of their young life under the New Deal but it did not make them cynical or evasive and when the call came both dropped their careers to fight for the United States.

My apologies to the Doakes kid and to his family and all the Doakses everywhere.

A STONE'S THROW FROM BROADWAY: Jan Savitt is mighty relieved about staying in New York for a while. Nancy Kelly, who was grounded nine times on her recent flight west, has written a story about the harrowing trip, called "Points West," and sold it to a national magazine. . . . CALL TROOPS TO QUELL LABOR ROW VIOLENCE

Missouri Chief Executive Acts In Dispute on High Octane Gasoline Pipeline.

(By United Press)

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—Gov. Forrest C. Donnell called out the state militia today to prevent further violence between union and non-union members whose dispute has halted construction of a pipeline to carry high octane aviation fuel to the east.

An undisclosed number of troops were en route to Illmo, Mo., a small village on the bank of the Mississippi river, where violence occurred last week. The troops were expected to arrive about 10 a. m.

In St. Louis, Federal Labor Conciliator C. A. Lavelley disclosed that information about the dispute and the resultant work stoppage had been turned over to Fuels Co-ordinator Harold L. Ickes, who recently took over the nation's bituminous mines on order of President Roosevelt.

The dispute arose from the attempts of AFL unions to organize workers of the Oil States Construction company of Tulsa, Okla., and the Dunn Construction company, a Texas firm, both of which are under contract to build the urgently needed pipeline.

Donnell also ordered Sheriff John W. Hobbs of Scott county to arrest about 30 men who had refused to be sworn in as deputies to preserve order.

C. H. Dunn, of the Dunn Construction company, said he came to Missouri from Texas 10 days ago to meet with representatives of three AFL unions representing hoisting engineers, teamsters and laborers.

The union officials, he said, objected because 300 men brought in from Texas and Oklahoma were non-union employes, and protested that all men hired on the project should be from Missouri.

Work was begun on the project April 24, but men Dunn described as union organizers "threatened violence." As a result, he said, the two companies on April 27 armed their guards and watchmen with shotguns.

Workers for the Bolz Construction company, under contract to dig the pipeline under the Mississippi river, quit the same day. The Bolz workers are union members.

Then said Dunn, violence broke out and a non-union man, O. B. Young, was injured seriously "when struck over the head with a blunt instrument."

All work on the project stopped April 28, and one the same day six union organizers and three guards of the Oil States Construction firm engaged in a fist fight in the Marquette hotel at Cape Girardeau. Hotel officials said they did $500 damage.

Civilians will no longer be able to admire the fancy press that has decorated the shirts worn by men in the army—the two creases down the front and the three in the back. The war production board recently ordered cleaners and pressers to discontinue the practice contending that the five operations involved in pressing could be eliminated and thereby save valuable time. No doubt officers and enlisted men will also welcome the change for it will eliminate another inspection worry.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Tedrick, former Mansfield residents, were mughly surprised when they met the Tedricks at the Pennsylvania station the other day. The couple was resplendent in high boots, ten gallon hats and other regalia of cowboys when they stepped from the train. They have been living in the heart of the "wild and wooly west" at the Basic Magnesium town site near Las Vegas, Nev. The town is so new and has grown so rapidly that it doesn't even have a name yet.

Roma Byrd, Mansfield R. D. 2, contributed the first knife to county civilian defense headquarters for use of Ohio soldiers against the Japanese. The vicious looking weapon, sharpened to razor edge, was hand made from a hack saw and has a hand-carved handle, inscribed with the words "The Dog House, Mansfield, Ohio." The sheath too is homemade. "Minute Men," sportsmen's civilian defense organization, will assist in collecting the knives.

CLAMPS BAN ON PLEASURE TRIPS

OPA Investigators Ordered To Check Misuse of B and C Gasoline Rations.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The Office of Price Administration today invoked a nation-wide pleasure-driving ban against 10,000,000 motorists holding "B" and "C" gasoline ration books.

The action climaxes growing evidence of OPA's new-found toughness and determination to put teeth into its price and rationing enforcement, curb rising costs of living, roll back excessive food prices and wipe out black markets in food, gasoline and other commodities.

Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown instructed OPA district offices to assign "all available investigators" to clean up the present gasoline black market and the misuse of "B" and "C" books for non-essential driving. Technically, such books always have been issued only for occupational purposes, but there have been widespread violations.

"Every effort will be made to detect such violations and not only to revoke their present rations but to suspend their right to any further rations for an appreciable time," he said.

OPA'S "crack-down" on "B" and "C" book violators tops off a whirlwind surge of activity which has beset the agency since President Roosevelt strengthened its position with a public pronouncement to hold down the cost of living and eliminate black marketeers and "chiselers" from the economic scene.

Other developments:

OPA announced that specific dollars and cents "community-wide" price ceilings will go into effect next Monday in approximately 150 cities on poultry, fluid milk, bread, eggs, butter, packaged cheese, sugar, cereals, evaporated and condensed milk, flour and other grocery items.

IDENTIFY 13 OF 15 KILLED IN POWDER BLASTS

Army, Navy Officials Probe Maryland Explosions That Put 25 In Hospital.

(By United Press)

ELKTON, Md.—Thirteen of 15 persons killed yesterday in explosions and fire which demolished a portion of the Triumph Explosives company plant, one mile from here, were identified today.

Twenty-five persons were hospitalized and 75 others were treated at the plant hospital for minor injuries. Five of those in the plant hospital were said to be in critical condition and the condition of two others was described as serious.

Army and navy officers at the plant would not comment on the probable cause of the blasts and said they were investigating.

Six of the dead were women. The bodies lay in an undertaking establishment and fellow-workers filed past last night in an effort to aid in the identification. Most of the bodies were badly burned and mangled.

The company released the names of the following identified dead:

Della Truman, Cedar Grove, W. Va.; Willie Craddock, negro, South Boston, Va.; Jewell Nedifer, Allentown Hill, W. Va.; Susan Nolli, Eynon, Pa.; Charles Millman, Camden, Del.; Gilbert Poore, Warwick, Md.; Wilson Warner, Elkton; Iva Young, Elkton; Mrs. Hurley Gilmore, 20, Coatesville, Pa.; Christine Arby, Raleigh, N. C.; Harry Rias, Dover, Del.; Chester Whaley, Wilmington, Del.

The first blast occurred in an explosives treatment building near the center of the large plant. A moment later a building in which tracer bullet explosives were handled dissolved in a second explosion. Fires swept rapidly to three surrounding structures, one the plant canteen. Several women employes were in this building, witnesses said, and some were trapped and burned.

The blasts rocked Elkton, famed matrimonial town, and within a few minutes roads to the plant were blocked by automobiles carrying the curious and relatives of employes.

Pointing his Tyger trackmen toward another district championship in the meet to be held Saturday, May 22, at Stadium field, Harry the Merry Mehock is keeping his fingers crossed these days, and he doesn't care if the postman doesn't ring twice, or once or any.

Two of his very few senior scantyclads are enlisted in the army air force, and while Harry wishes them many happy landings, he can't be blamed for hoping that they confine their landings to the track tape and jumping pit until school's out.

Howard Herrick, dash man, quarter miler and broad jumper, and Louis Nameth, quarter and half miler, are the athletes in question, and their loss before the district meet could prove costly.

Herrick has been a consistent first place winner this spring, and Nameth has carted a respectable number of points across the finish line.

They enlisted in the air force at the same time as Bill Snowden, senior gridder. And Snowden has his marching orders for May 17.

Big Bruce McGinty, former Tyger cage star who earned his basketball "W" at Ohio Wesleyan this past winter, is a baseball player now, by order of the U. S. Navy.

Home over the last weekend, Bruce reported that while he had never played on a baseball team before, "the chief naval officer at Wesleyan is determined that sports shall be continued, and he says I gotta play baseball. So I gotta play baseball."

Bruce is enlisted in one of the navy reserves, and will be going to school most of the summer, so he'll have plenty of time to learn about this baseball business.

If he passes all the necessary tests this spring, he'll get a short vacation in June before returning to Wesleyan for a regular naval course the first of July.

A semester or so of school, and then he reports to a naval training base.

Now he's earned a monogram, Bruce will play for Uncle Sam.

Novikoff Fumes at Hacienda

Cubs Could Have Used Him In Slugging Tilt.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THE most interested non participating observer of the goings-on in the major leagues these days must be Louis Novikoff, fuming on the front porch of his hacienda at South Gate, Calif.

The Mad Russian is a holdout and he's mad. More precisely, he is angry, not crazy—at least not to the extent of overlooking the Chicago Cubs scraping bottom in the standings of the National league today.

* * *

The Cubs introduced last year's bail to Chicago for the first time yesterday and 3,908 fans, the biggest crowd of the day, saw a game in which there were 25 hits for a total of 36 bases and 14 runs. But unfortunately from the Chicago standpoint, 15 of the hits, including a home run by Whitey Kurowski, were made by the St. Louis Cardinals, who won 11-3.

Of the ten Chicago hits not a single one was made by an outfielder.

A call to Novikoff seems bound to come soon. He was one of eight hitters who averaged .300 or better in the National league last year.

Chicago's American League club, the White Sox, also is in the cellar, but this is causing no disturbance because it was picked to finish about seventh while the sports writers before the season rated the Cubs third in the senior circuit.

The Philadelphia Phillies vaulted pretentiously into sixth place in the National league by beating the Brooklyn Dodgers 3-1 in a twilight game.

Jack Kraus, the rookie southpaw whom the Dodgers sent to the Phillies a few weeks ago, pitched five-hit ball for his second success against Brooklyn.

The Giants were shipped 5-3 by the Boston Braves as Jim Tobin pitched six-hit ball and batted in three runs with a pair of singles.

Pittsburgh was outhit by Cincinnati 13-9, but nevertheless beat the Reds 8-3 as Rookie Xavier Rescigno worked his way out of continual jams.

In the American league the New York Yankees kept half a step ahead of Cleveland by beating the Boston Red Sox 4-3. Spud Chandler allowed only six hits and one earned run for his second win.

The Indians squeezed out a 2-1 decision over the White Sox in a tight game for Jim Bagby's third triumph. He allowed just five hits and no scoring after the first frame.

Virgil Trucks of Detroit also achieved his third victory without a defeat as the Tigers stopped the St. Louis Browns 4-3, but he had to have hitless rescue work for 1⅔ innings by Dizzy Trout to weather a belated offensive by the Browns.

The Philadelphia Athletics matched the Phils and also climbed to sixth place, the Mackmen defeating the Washington Senators, 3 to 1, behind the three-hit pitching of their Mexican rookie, Jesse Flores.

Ray Mack Given 3-A Draft Rating

Second Baseman Ray Mack of the Cleveland Indians, whose appeal for reclassification from 1-A in the army draft was turned down recently by the draft board of appeals in Mansfield, yesterday was reclassified in 2-A by his own board in Cleveland.

Forest E. Wilson, member of the Cleveland board, explained that Mack's reclassification was a routine action under a draft directive issued since the Mansfield decision, which stipulated that fathers married before Pearl Harbor, whose children were born before Sept. 15, 1942, should be put in 3-A.

Mack has one child 18 months old.

Boudreau Sticks to Flag Hope

Says Tribe Will Fight It Out With Yankees.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Manager Lou Boudreau hasn't changed his mind about the part his Cleveland Indians will play in this year's pennant-grabbing contest.

Before the opening of the season the 25-year-old pilot volunteered a statement that the Tribe would be the team to beat. Last night at Akron Boudreau declared his charges would battle it out with the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Browns.

He spoke at the Akron Touchdown club's meeting honoring the University of Akron's Zippers, who set a new school record by winning 18 basketball games, and the city championship East High cagers.

Tribal hopes for the flag were bolstered by the news that second baseman Ray Mack has been reclassified from 1-A to 3-A.

Al Milnar and Chubby Dean hurl for the Redskins today as they oppose the Chicago White Sox in a double header at League park. Lefty Edgar Smith and Lee (Buck) Ross are the Sox starters.

Jim Bagby annexed his third mound victory in as many starts yesterday as the Tribe edged the Pale Hose 2 to 1 in the series opener.

Bagby was wild in the early innings but in the last six stanzas he allowed only one Chicagoan to reach first base. The Sox got their lone tally in the first when Bagby walked Luke Appling and Joe Kuhel and Moose Solters dropped a single over the infield.

The Indians tied it up in the same frame when Oris Hockett singled, took second on Boudreau's infield out and scored on a double by Jeff Heath, who collected two more before the game ended.

The Indians were required to nick Bill Dieterich for a quartet of fifth inning singles to score the winning marker because Mack and Boudreau both were thrown out at the plate by Thurman Tucker, Chicago's rookie center-fielder, while attempting to rally from second on one-basers by Hockett and Ken Keltner. Bordreau's single plated Hockett.

WALTERS STARTS

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Cincinnati Manager Bill McKechnie will send right hander Bucky Walters against the Pitsburgh Pirates tonight in the first night baseball game at Crosley Field this season.

Johnny Lanning is expected to receive the nod from Frankie Frisch.

Tonight's contest decides the three-game series, the Reds pounded four Pirate pitchers for 17 hits and a 7 to 5 victory in Monday's game, while the Pittsburghers turned the tables for an 8 to 3 win yesterday.

The Reds however, outhit Frishe's stalwarts in yesterday's contest 13 to 9 but Pirate rookie Xavier Rescigno, up from Albany in the Eastern league, kept the Cincinnati blows well-spaced.

The Pirates collected all of their runs in the first four innings and then coasted. Little Lonnie Frey, Cincinnati second baseman, who is leading the National league in hitting with .429, went hitless in four trips to the plate.

EIGHT TEAM GOLF LEAGUE ORGANIZED

Nimlick swingers of the News-Journal "A" and "B" golf leagues last night voted to combine in one league of eight teams for the coming season at Possum Run, a check-up of golfers left over from the two circuits showing just enough for one organization.

Sponsors are still to be selected and a schedule drawn up to start May 25. Officers from the "A" league, Paul Jessen, president, and Carl Wiseman, secretary, continue in the same positions since the "B" league had no officers remaining for the coming season. All games are to be played on Tuesdays.

Cpl. Morton Smith, golf's famed Joplin Ghost is at an air forces officer candidate school at Miami Beach, not far from courses over which he scored notable triumphs. In 1929 he won the La Gorce 85-(00 open; in 1933 he and Paul Runyan won the International Four-ball; and in 1935 he won first money of $2,500 at the Miami-Biltmore open.

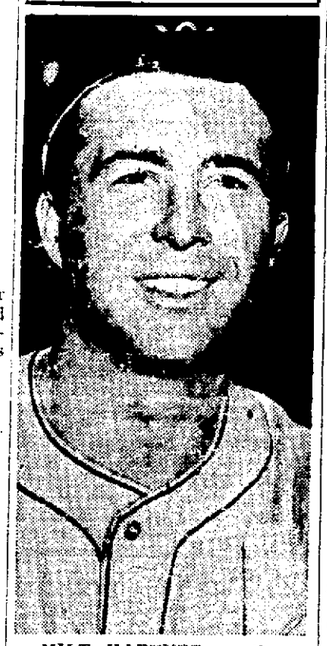
NEW YORK — Larry Fontana, 150, New York, outpointed Leon Anthony, 158, Elberton, Ga. (8).

From the Minors



MILT HAEFNER, southpaw twirler of the Washington Senators, comes up to Nats from Minneapolis where he won 18 games and fanned 113 batters. "Mickey" is a product of the Florida state league. He is one of the shorter players in the loop, standing only five feet eight.

Lonnie Frey Leads Hitters

National Leaguers Hop On Old Ball.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Comparison of the batting averages of the National and American leagues may or may not reflect the difference between the 1942 official baseball now being used in the former and the new balata ball with which clubs in the latter loop are playing.

But it remains the hitters in the National league, who in previous seasons usually have trailed the marks set by the sluggers in the junior circuit, now have better marks than those in the American league.

The leading hitter in the major leagues at the moment is little Lonnie Frey of the Cincinnati Reds with an average of .467. His lifetime mark in ten years in the National league before this season is .272.

Danny Litwhiler of the Phillies, with .409, and Clyde Kluttz of the Boston Braves are also in the .400 class among players who have been at bat 20 or more times. Kluttz's average is an even .400.

Top man in the American is Vernon Stephens of the St. Louis Browns with .448 and the only other hitter in the .400 bracket is Pinky Higgins of Detroit, with .414.

There are ten men in the National batting .333 or better while the tenth man in the American has .302.

Another criterion is in home run production. In the National league Litwhiler has hit three and 12 others have notched one while in the American there have been only five roundtrippers.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK — (AP) — The new major league baseball is about as lively as the one the Southern Association uses . . . and the Southern league always has insisted on plenty of pep in the pills so there'd be plenty of guys with big batting averages to sell at the end of each season. . . . Lou Coleman of Spalding's says the production line will be rolling by today so that there's no danger of shortage the rest of the season . . . Lou Smith is trying to round up 500 bicycles so that race fans can pedal to Rockingham park from the Lawrence, Mass., station where all the trains stop . . . If he'd install a few mutuel windows at the stadium so the riders could bet on themselves, the idea might go over.

CONFESSION

When ex-Featherweight Champ Chalky Wright, who always thought training was getting aboard a train, turned up at the gym yesterday for the first time in seven weeks, Mike Belloise greeted him: "What are you doing here, Chalky? Are you sick?" . . . "No," admited Chalky gravely, "I'm just hungry."

Football Tackle Gets Thug

Downtown Quarterback Earns His Letter.

By DON STULL

COLUMBUS —(AP)— This city's famous downtown quarterback club was prouder today than it was last fall when Ohio State university's football team captured the National and Big Ten championships.

The reason?

One of the club's members executed a brilliant flying tackle that resulted in the capture of a pair of suspected jewel thieves in the early hours of yesterday.

The tackler was Howard Hockman, 39-year-old former manager of the Columbus Press club and now night manager of a swanky downtown restaurant.

* * *

Fellow club members, avid for details of Hockman's teeth-rattling tackle, couldn't get much out of the modest restaurateur today, but they found a willing chronicler in another member—Johnny Jones, a columnist for the Columbus Evening Dispatch, who played a major part in the capture of the duo.

Jones, a professional story-teller, gave them this version:

He was standing at the main downtown intersection, talking to a patrolman "when up runs Hockman and tells us:

"'A couple of guys just bashed in a jewelry store window up the street and are looting the place.'"

Jones and the patrolmen started for the store, leaving Hockman behind. The suspects ducked down a couple of alleys, doubled back toward Hockman, who braced himself and let fly with a tackle that brought down one of the pair. The other became bewildered and stopped. Then Jones and the patrolman took over.

They said the two had $1,500 worth of watches and rings. They are charged with grand larceny.

Jones said Hockman's tackle was as pretty as any he'd ever seen in Ohio stadium.

All Hockman had to say was: "My shoulder is pretty sore."

Coach Paul Brown of Ohio State had something to say about it, however. Said Paul:

"That guy Hockman is no tackle-cloth tackle."

Then he added:

"Say, he's over draft age; isn't he? I could probably use him this fall."

FAVORITES WIN

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Chalk players today were having a hey day at the current race meeting at nearby Beulah park. Five more public choices bounced home in front yesterday to give the form players a .542 batting average with 13 out of 24 winners. Brutus, owned by Walter Wilkerson, copped the feature yesterday at $3.60 for $2.

Tours Tunisia Front, Finds Axis Lines Slowly Crumble

WRITER SEES YANKS MAKE STEADY GAINS

Airfields Wrested From Nazis or Made Unusable Along 180-Mile Line.

By C. R. CUNNINGHAM
(UP Staff Correspondent)

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES NEAR MATEUR, 8 a. m. May 5—Like a stoutly-constructed wall that has been sledge-hammered repeatedly, the Axis defenses in the north are slowly cracking and yielding.

That was evident today as I completed a 180-mile tour of battle positions held by the American Second Corps and the French, who even now are delivering further damaging blows.

As we completed a swing to key sectors of the American front extending within six miles of the north coast, word came from the south that the Second corps had captured Eddekhila, 13 miles below Mateur and only six miles from the key junction of Tebourba on the road to Tunis.

A desperate fight must be expected for Bizerte, but the story was the same—slow, steady progress—on the entire American and French front in the north.

On the northernmost flank near the so-called Bizerte neck, we followed a hard-driving patrol that Tuesday cracked the ever-weakening enemy defenses manned by Germans, Italians and an Arab tree corps and pushed to within a dozen miles of Bizerte naval base.

On the rear communications lines, I saw 1,000 American vehicles moving into position and being supplied with tremendous quantities of gasoline that left no doubt in my mind as to why there is rationing back home.

On the front north from Mateur, an American armored reconnaissance unit slugged through soft, mushy ground to attack Djebel Achkel, at the southern edge of the lake of the same name where the enemy appeared to be making a stand with artillery.

On the Mateur front, Nazi dive-bombers swept out of the east and swooped to within 100 feet of a bridge, where they dropped bombs. They also bombed Mateur but the damage could not even be recognized a few minutes later because the town was so thoroughly smashed last week by American artillery.

On a long drive along the west side of Lake Achkel and southward to Sidi N'Sir there was sporadic shelling of the road on which we travelled but it was significant that there was not any other evidence of enemy action and only two hostile aircraft were sighted.

On the whole front, many airfields have been wrested from the Nazis or made unuseable.

Our journey along the front extended past the famed green and bald hills, where the Second corps avenged the loss of many American and British soldiers; to the Bizerte neck, only six miles from the Mediterranean coast, and thence eastward to where one of our infantry patrols was moving on to Djebel Chemti and thence southward to Mateur and on to Sidi N'Sir.

It was south of Mateur that we saw what may be the most important operations. There American forces were swinging into position in preparation for a drive to crack enemy defenses guarding the Tunis plain.

The Germans had fallen back 13 miles in this sector to take advantage of the high ground around Eddekhila, which lies 13 miles south and slightly east af Mateur. This withdrawal was necessary for the Germans in order to keep the path open for shifting their defensive strength northward to meet American armor based on Mateur.

The Americans pushed on rapidly, however, and word came today that they had captured Eddekhila.

ODT Representative To Study City's Taxi Situation.

A representative of the Office of Defense Transportation at Cleveland was scheduled to meet in Mansfield this afternoon with city officials and Mansfield taxi operators to study means of reducing the use of taxis in the city to conserve cars, tires, and gasoline.

The ODT, which arranged the meeting, told Mayor W. J. Locke and Police Chief Meade K. Bates that Mansfield has a greater number of taxis in operation in proportion to the city's population than other cities of similar size in northern Ohio.

The mayor, Bates, and Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff were scheduled to confer with the ODT representative and proprietors of the city's five taxi firms.

BIGGEST WAGE HEARING ENDS

Railway Union and Operators Make Last Arguments on Pay Boost Before Panel.

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO — The nation's biggest wage dispute, the plea of 15 non-operating railroad unions for a 20-cents-an-hour wage increase with a 70-cent minimum, quietly drew to a close today.

As the presidential fact-finding board began winding up its hearing in the case, final arguments were presented by attorneys for the nation's railroads and the unions.

If the wage increase is granted, $466,000,000 a year will be added to the operating costs of class I railroads, $26,000,000 to costs of the Railway Express agency and additional sum for short lines and other employes.

The dispute, which involves 900,000 employes, has been before the board since March 1, under procedure of the national railway labor act.

In his final argument, A. W. Hartung, vice president of the express agency cited President Roosevelt's executive order No. 9,328 issued after the hearings began. He pointed out that the order allows the war labor board to approve wage increases only to correct sub-standards of living or to keep step with living costs within the limit of the little steel formula.

Frank L. Mulholland, union attorney, declared the president's order was not meant to discriminate against railroad labor by "changing the rules of the game" after the hearing had begun. He argued that an increase was justified because railroad pay has not risen as rapidly as wage scales in manufacturing during the war emergency.

CAPITAL MYSTERY MAN DENIES HE ENTERTAINED WAR BROKERS

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — John Porter Monroe, the capital's newest "mystery man," told the house military affairs committee today that the widely-publicized dinners at his big red house on R street were "never orgies, never drunken and never attended by lewd women."

That was the high-light of the first hour of his widely-heralded appearance before the committee. For the most part, the scores of spectators who jammed the committee room were disappointed. The fireworks they had anticipated didn't occur.

"My guests were the best, most intelligent people I have ever known," Monroe said in answers to questions by H. Ralph Burton, counsel for the committee.

The witness, who said he had changed his name from Monroe Kaplan in 1940, said he had never entertained war brokers at his house and that none of his guests could say that one word of business was ever mentioned at these parties.

Monroe had to fight his way to the stand through a jam-packed hearing room. Chairman Andrew J. May, D., Ky., declared an informal recess while more than a dozen photographers worked on the man who had played host to cabinet members, high government officials and members of congress.

May had to rap for order as the audience snickered at Monroe's charge that "press innuendos indicate that I'm a mysterious person tainted with skeletons in my closet."

Monroe told the committee he was a singularly unsuccessful manufacturer's agent, and said he had worn $5,000 worth of linoleum" off the floors of government department outer offices in an effort to see key men.

Questioned, he said he represented three woodworking companies—"that is, possibly I do and possibly I don't. I'm not sure since this investigation started."

FDR, SIKORSKI CHANGE NOTES

Polish Sources Reveal Leaders Correspond on Rupture of Soviet-Pole Relations.

(By United Press)

LONDON — There has been an exchange of personal letters regarding the Russian-Polish dispute between President Roosevelt and Premier Wladislaw Sikorski of Poland's refugee government, Polish sources revealed today.

The exact nature of the message was not disclosed.

Sikorski last night urged Russia to release thousands of Polish soldiers and civilians as a step toward re-establishment of ruptured diplomatic relations between the two governments.

Sikorski said he was interested in resuming diplomatic relations with Russia as soon as possible, but there was a limit to Polish concessions.

"It has always been and will continue to be one of the main guiding principles of the Polish government and the whole Polish nation to secure friendly relations with the Soviet Union," Sikorski said in a radio address commemorating Polish Independence day.

". . . the facts which are separating us must be removed as soon as possible."

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Elmer Davis, director of the office of war information, today described as "very fishy" the Axis propaganda claims that Russia executed 10,000 Polish officers in a mass killing.

He credited these Axis claims as being largely responsible for the current break in diplomatic relations between Russia and the Polish government in London.

THEATERS

"One Day of War"

The current release of "March of Time," entitled "One Day of War," was filmed in the Soviet Union simultaneously by 160 cameramen. It is said to portray in 20 minutes the courage and steadfast strength of a country at war. The pictures shows Russian soldiers swinging along to their song of victoryland, the big barrage balloons that float over Moscow, and the workers fighting the war on the production lines. It shows numerous episodes of the life of the Red army and navy, of fliers and guerilla fighters.

Mystery Film.

Stalking his prey in the very heart of Broadway, the screen's strangest killer throws Times Square into a turmoil in Columbia's new mystery film, "Murder In Times Square." The picture opens today at the Madison and stars Edmund Lowe. Lowe portrays a playwright-actor who becomes involved in a series of maniacal murders, all committed by the injection of snake venom. Featuring Stuart Erwin as a meek bookkeeper and Evelyn Venable as his sweetheart, the comedy drama "He Hired the Boss," is the co-attraction.

Double Role.

A drama of international spying, "The Great Impersonation" opens tomorrow at the Park. Ralph Bellamy appears in the picture as the man who impersonates a ruthless enemy counter-espionage agent, an exact double of himself. The action starts when Baron von Regenstein meets Sir Edward Dominey at the latter's jungle retreat in Africa. Sir Dominey had left England six years previous to their meeting. The two men could easily pose as twins, they looked so much alike. The Nazi decides to dispose of the baron and go to England, posing as the baron. His plan works until he meets the real baron's wife. Bellamy's double plays the part of von Regenstein at the meeting in Africa. Co-attraction is "Two Fisted Justice."

Weird Drama.

"The Ape Man," Monogram's strange motion picture story, opens tomorrow at the Ritz. The story finds Bela Lugosi, partially in the form of an ape, committing murders in his attempt to secure the spinal fluid which will restore him to human form. With a real ape as his assistant, the horrified man becomes the center of a series of events before he finally is overtaken by retribution of a terrible description. Ken Maynard has the starring role in the co-attraction, "Wild Horse Stampede."

Week-End Parties Being Planned by Girl Scout Troops

Girl Scout troops over the city today are making plans for week-end parties.

Troop 2, a Brownie troop at Brinkerhoff school, will play hostess to mothers of the members at a 6:30 dinner Friday at the Grace Episcopal church.

Another Brinkerhoff troop, Troop 28, will receive their Girl Scout pins at a party for their mothers Saturday at 3 p. m. at North Lake park.

Also on Saturday, Troop 21 will hold a party at Middle park. Scouts will meet at 6 p. m. and cook their supper following which they will have games and a campfire. Each girl will bring one guest.

Yesterday Troop 12 at Western school under Mrs. John R. Kinsey and Miss Leona Miles held an investiture service attended by many of their mothers. A shadowgraph of the Brownie story, games and folk dances made up the entertainment. During the candlelight service the Brownies received their hats and pins.

INSPECT CAMP

Young Democrats Taken on Tour of NYA Center.

About 50 members and guests of Richland county's Young Democratic club last night inspected the NYA camp near Mifflin.

Thomas Jenkins, superintendent of the camp, conducted the tour which started in the recreation hall, continued through the kitchen and dining room, storage rooms, hospital and dormitories where 160 may be accommodated and concluded with a more detailed inspection of the work shops. Training procedures were described along with types of work done by the students, most of whom are from Kentucky with a few from Ohio.

Owing to the large number of recent placements, enrollment at the camp is not up to strength at the present time, Jenkins explained. Educational qualifications for trainees have been relaxed somewhat, he said, because of the decreased number of applications received. Age limits, which now are 17 to 24 years, may also be changed, he predicted.

GOALS EXCEEDED

National, County Red Cross Quotas Both Surpassed.

Walter S. Gifford, national chairman of the 1943 Red Cross War Fund campaign, said in a statement today that $138,000,000 has been contributed to the fund. The minimum amount sought was $125,000,000, the largest amount ever asked for in one campaign by any organization in this country.

Richland county which also had the largest quota ever sought in a Red Cross drive raised $69,362. The quota set for the county was $59,000 and workers throughout the county collected more than $10,000 beyond the quota.

Gifford declared the drive as a whole to be very successful. He said, "In spite of March income tax payments and continued purchase of War bonds, millions of people — undoubtedly a record number—have contributed generously. This is evidence that however difficult the problems we face in these war times we can make the necessary sacrifices to meet them voluntarily and cheerfully."

RALLY HELD FOR MEMBER DRIVE

Annual membership rally drive of the John Todd Park association was held last night at Hedges school.

Speakers included R. S. Gibson and Ed Wiley, both of the park commission, and Frank Burton, park director, who explained the plans for the city parks and what will be done this summer to John Todd park.

The Hedges Parent-Teacher association will conduct a house-to-house canvass in the Sixth ward to secure funds to help in the development of the park.

Committee Buries Bricker Bill to Repeal Meal Tax

lin) to recommend the bill for passage.

Immediately afterward Rep. Earl M. Seiferd, (R-Auglaize) moved that the bill be postponed indefinitely.

Rep. Earl French (R-Delaware), acting committee chairman, asked if there were any objections. Not a voice was heard and French so ordered the bill shoved aside. No one saw hope of its revival.

Amendments tacked to the bill would have exempted from the sales tax such items as fuels used in homes, burial equipment, all medicines, eye glasses, utilities equipment, the Bible, the flag, all church materials, artificial limbs, and liquor sold by the glass.

MARKET HOLDS STEADY DURING EARLY TRADING

Plus and Minus Signs Well Divided as Board Keeps Balance For Day.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market held steady in early dealings today, with price changes fairly well divided between the plus and minus columns.

Fractional gainers in moderately active turnover included U. S. Steel, U. S. Rubber, and General Electric. Laggard were American Can and American Telephone, among others.

Oil shares, particularly of those companies whose major revenue stems from producing, had to contend with Price Administrator Brown's denial of the 35-cent a barrel average crude price rise recommended by Petroleum Chief Harold Ickes. The proposal was intended to stimulate output and exploratory drilling and to make practical the operation of wells which barely paid costs under present price schedules.

Request Says Road Revision Will Cause $800 Damage.

Only one claim had been filed today with Richland county commissioners for compensation as a result of damage anticipated in re-routing of Trimble road to eliminate "Dead Man's Crossing."

It was that of A. B. Mabee, 392 West Third street, who asked $800 for damage to a strip of his farm about 3,500 feet long and 30 feet wide, the claim said.

culty getting to their posts during the recent test black-out and would have more trouble as long as the condition exists. The identity of wardens was questioned at a number of homes during the recent black-out, the wardens said.

It was learned that an order for equipment which was placed more than eight weeks ago was returned after it was sent to the wrong place and that a revised order was lost in handling by local OCD representatives.

Mayor Locke said he refused to approve an order for equipment after he assumed chairmanship of the OCD council because it called for an expenditure of close to $400, which he called an excessive figure. It was understood the amount later was reduced to about $180. The revised order is still in the OCD headquarters, however, awaiting approval by the OCD council.

The mayor told heads of the defense units that the city has enough civilian defense funds to last only another five months with normal expenditures and he would not consent to large expenditures for more equipment until he knows that more money is in sight. The city anticipates another allocation of state funds, but there has been no indication when the money will arrive.

OCD workers are awaiting the arrival of about 700 helmets for auxiliary police and fire watchers.

Marriott said he had been told that the arm bands and insignia were ordered several weeks ago and learned later that the order had not been placed at all. He said he was being asked "embarrassing questions" by workers who were beginning to wonder what had happened to the equipment.

LEARN 'TRICKS'

Police Taking Up Judo In New 10-Week Course.

To keep pace with the army in training in the art of self defense, 15 Mansfield police officers today had started lessons in judo, the American version of jujitsu, under the direction of Edward L. Allen veteran trainer of the Akron police force.

Every Tuesday for the next 10 weeks police force members will practice throwing each other around on mats and learning holds that will enable them to handle larger adversaries.

The officers pay for the training themselves and a number of them in the class are older members of the police force.

"Some of these fellows who will be back from the army some day will know a lot about jujitsu," said Police Chief Meade K Bates, "and we want to be able to say the same for police officers."

WAIT DETAILS ON FATAL CRASH

Army Reveals Gen. Andrews, U. S. Commander in Europe, Bishop Leonard Killed.

an ocean flight but there was no immediate word of their fate.

Presumably Gen. Andrews' deputy, Maj. Gen. Harry C. Ingles, will temporarily take over Andrews' duties as commander of American armed forces in Europe. Andrews was appointed to that post Feb. 5, succeeding Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower when the latter took over the direction of the invasion and subsequent military operations in North Africa.

The brief army announcement in London of the plane crash said only that the tragedy occurred in an isolated spot. "Full information concerning the accident is not yet available," the announcement concluded.

Andrews came to the European theater of operations from Cairo, where he previously commanded United States armed forces in the Middle East. He was chief of the Caribbean defense command and Panama Canal department before assuming the Cairo post last November.

The 59-year-old "flying general," who had been a pilot, was for many years an enthusiastic champion of increased air strength and an independent military arm.

A native of Nashville, Tenn., he was graduated from West Point in 1906. He subsequently served in the Philippines and Hawaii and as air service officer with the American army of occupation in Germany at the close of the first World war. In 1911 he married Miss Jeannette Allen, daughter of Lieut. Col. Henry T. Allen, who later was Andrews' commanding officer in the occupation army.

Andrews was appointed chief of the army air corps in 1935 with the rank of temporary brigadier general and later elevated to major general. Appointed to the Panama Canal command in 1940, he also assumed defense of the Caribbean and was made a lieutenant general in 1941.

Bishop Leonard, born in Cincinnati in 1874, was ordained in the Methodist Episcopal ministry in 1899 on his graduation from New York university and was elected bishop in May of 1916.

He was active in anti-liquor movements and took part in recent presidential election campaigns, stumping against Alfred E. Smith's candidacy in 1928 and opposing a third term for President Roosevelt in 1940.

COUNCIL DELAYS STREET ACTION

Absence of Three Members Prevents Passage of City Street Legislation.

time for the May 13 meeting.

At that time, council also will act on legislation for the resurfacing of East Fifth street from Main street to the Pennsylvania railroad, the purchase of additional land at the Maxwell Springs pumping station, establishing of a parking meter sinking fund purchase of conduit for fire, traffic, and police signal lines under South Mulberry and West Second streets, and a sanitary sewer project on East Raleigh avenue.

Councilman George C. Kyle, sponsor of the parking meter fund bill, said after last night's meeting that he would change the legislation to boost the first year's sinking fund from $3,000 to $8,000. He changed his mind after learning that there's a balance of $30,352 in the parking meter fund, he said. The sinking fund would climb to $20,000 eventually, providing for the repair and replacement of meters.

Council received and filed protests against street repair assessments from Winona N. Miller, owner of a Glessner avenue property; George W. DeYarmon, Irvin H. Brune, Myrtle E. Lorentz, Gordon Y. Sowash and Guy S. White, all Bartley avenue property holders; S. L. Houston, a Glessner avenue home owner, and Loretta Kasner, East Raleigh avenue property holder.

The letters of protest contended that assessments for street repairs already completed were excessive.

YANKS WITHIN 10 MILES OF BIZERTE BASE

Second U. S. Thrust Threatens Tebourba, Third Drive Near Ferryville.

across Lake Bizerte from Bizerte, and advancing within 10 miles of Tebourba.

Tebourba is 18 miles west of Tunis, the capital.

At the southern end of the 100-mile western rampart, French troops were reported to have driven a wedge into German defenses in the Zaghouan sector, 28 miles south of Tunis, at the "hinge" linking the British First and Eighth armies.

An Allied communique said light Allied naval forces blew up a Tunis-bound Axis munitions ship off Cap Bon and sank an escorting 650-ton Italian torpedo boat.

Axis Jittery Over Possible Island Blow

LONDON—(AP)—Axis broadcasts raised the question today of whether the Allies will invade Sicily or Sardinia immediately to speed the defeat of the Axis in Tunisia and the subsequent attack on southern Europe itself.

Occupation of either Sicily or Sardinia would cut off the main supply bases of the Italo-German armies in Tunisia and deprive them of their main air support positions. In addition, it would give the Allies valuable stepping-stone bases for an invasion of Italy and, in the case of Sardinia, France.

Axis radio stations daily report assemblage after assemblage of Allied transports, naval craft and landing barges at Gibraltar. Simultaneously, reports pour out from Turkey or German troop movements in the Balkans and hurried Nazi inspections of fortifications and the erection of new defenses.

The Allies, naturally, are not tipping their hand as to where they are going to land.

Sofia Deserted In Assassin Hunt

LONDON—(AP)—Axis radio reports said the streets of the Bulgarian capital of Sofia were deserted and all roads leading from the Axis-dominated state blocked in a wide search for the assassins of Col. Athanas Panteff former police chief who was slain Monday.

"The population of the Bulgarian capital was ordered to stay at home during the large-scale raid made by police and army to detect ring leaders of recent attacks," the Berlin radio said in a broadcast heard by the Associated Press.

The frank assertions about the drastic measures suggested the little Balkan king, first to desert the kaiser in the 1914-18 World war, was in grave unrest.

Norwegians Kill Two Nazi Policemen

STOCKHOLM — (AP) — Norway's resentment against German occupation appeared today to be flaring into more violent channels as German authorities reported slaying on April 28 of two Nazi police officials at Bergen in the latest of a series of outbreaks by the seething population.

Underground forces also killed two Norwegians in Oslo for making reports to Nazi authorities against loyal fellow citizens, reliable quarters reported.

U. S. Bombers Again Blast At Taranto

CAIRO — (AP) — American heavy bombers carried the air war to Italy again yesterday with daylight attacks on the Taranto naval base and Reggio Calabria at the toe of the Italian boot, the Ninth United States Air Force announced today.

Nazis Claim 16 Allied Ships Sunk

BERLIN — (By Official German Wireless) — (AP) — The German high command in a special communique today claiming that U-boats sank 16 ships totalling 102,000 tons out of two convoys in the North Atlantic. Four other ships were hit by torpedoes, the claim said.

(Editor's Note: While never short on encouraging news to report from other fronts, the German high command invariably issues exaggerated claims regarding Naval warfare. Such claims always are far in excess of the facts.)

Novorossisk Ground Fighting Increases

MOSCOW — (AP) — Ground fighting northeast of Novorossisk mounted today, keeping pace with the terrific air battles in the Kuban valley in which the German air force is reported to have lost more than 125 planes in the last two days.

The heavy weight of Soviet artillery is pounding the Nazis northeast of the Black sea port which still is German held, although the Russians have been south and east of Novorossisk for some time.

The last-published Soviet war front map showed the Red army line stretching northward from the Black sea to the Sea of Azov across the Kuban delta, but with a considerable bulge in the middle of the line.

(The Germans acknowledged a forced withdrawal 20 miles above the Port of Novorossisk and the loss to the Russians of the town of Krymskaya, only 17 miles northeast of the naval base.)

If the Red army is able to drive forward from this northeastern sector the Germans will be badly hampered in the port itself.

(The German radio declared the Russians lost 75 planes in fighting Monday and Tuesday.)

personal taxes for the five-year period.

Hallabrin obtained a mandamus in the fifth district appeals court directing Auditor Wolfe to investigate the estate.

Executors of the Black estate, represented by Attys. W. M. Welden of Mansfield and Luther Day of Cleveland, then obtained an order enjoining the auditor from proceeding with the investigation and re-assessment.

It was the county's appeal from the injunction that the state court dismissed today.

In 1941 the state legislature made it illegal to re-investigate an estate exempted from payment of personal taxes for the 1926-31 period, but made an exception of the Black case which was involved then in litigation.

Counsel for Hallabrin in the tax action included Atty. Joseph A. Bayer of Mansfield and Hart, McHenry, and Jones of Canton.

aged the two heavy cruisers and one of the light cruisers and forced the enemy to retreat.

American damage and casualties were light, said a navy communique which detailed the action.

The evidence indicated the Japanese on Attu and Kiska, where air bases have been under construction, needed whatever the transports were carrying so urgently that Tokyo assigned an unusually large escort.

Since March 1 air attacks have been heavy and sustained. The Aleutians command made 34 raids in March and since April 1 a total of 166 attacks has been reported, with a maximum of 15 in one day.

But the Japanese, according to the best available information, now live in caves, bury their supplies and expose themselves only when essential to their work.

The unfailing ally of the Japanese is the weather. Persons back from the islands say they have two terrible weather features—wind and fog.

American Subs Sink Six More Jap Ships

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Six more Japanese ships, including two destroyers, have been sent to the bottom of the Pacific by United States submarines, raising to 222 the number of Nipponese vessels sunk or damaged by American undersea craft.

The navy, in announcing the latest sinkings yesterday, added that a seventh vessel, described as a large transport, was "damaged and probably sunk."

In addition to the two destroyers, a communique said the other enemy losses were one medium-sized tanker, one medium-sized cargo ship, one medium-sized supply ship and one medium-sized transport.

THOUSAND SEE DANCE STUDENTS PERFORM IN 'POTPOURRI' REVUE

More than a thousand persons witnessed a colorful dance presentation, "Potpourri" by students of Miss Ethyl Battin at the Madison theater last night, under the auspices of McVey post, American Legion.

Elaborately staged and costumed, the production drew enthusiastic applause as youthful students of the dance demonstrated their abilities in a variety of numbers.

Starting of the first half of the program was a school-room, with James Brownscombe, Legion member, in the role of professor-narrator. There followed an "arithmetic" dance by 12 children, and "Imp" dance by Sally Lou Zeger, and then costume dances, some solo and some group, representing various nations. In the arithmetic number were Edward Benning, Joanne Miller, Henrietta Stiles, Nancy Duden Haver, Sally Groscost, Jayanne Herbert, Franklin Teeter, Billie Karchner, Carolyn Teeter, Maryln Warner, Bonnie Battin and Douglas Freeburger.

National group dances were Rumania, in bright peasant costumes, by Linda Hartman, Sandra Wilkinson, Carolyn Benning, Maureen O'Brien, Patricia Hallabrin, Jo Ellen Hurwitz, Barbara Breckenridge, Gail Bourquin, Carol Ann Sweet and Phyllis Lapine. A Russian Cossack dance was done by Patsy Baka, Beverly Gross, Constance Mitchell, Patricia Hoover, Marian Friend, Arlene Locke and Cynthia Cretors.

The second part of the program, entitled "Balletomania," opened with a prologue by Marilyn Joyce Teeter, followed by a "petite ballet" with Florence Ulrich as the ballerina, and Henrietta Stiles, Sally Groscost, Joyanne Herbert, Sally Stoodt, Peggy Bayer and Ruth Sweet.

Marjorie Van Allen did "Valse en Blanc" and Jayne Bushnell and Bruce McLaughlin gave "Moonlight Interlude," followed by Ann Carol Thompson in "Prelude to Spring."

Then came "Blue Danube" with Peggy Coberly as soloist, and Barbara Prion, Maureen O'Brien, Elinor Wilson, Shirley Ann Metzger, Patricia Hallabrin and Carol Jean Mitchell, Miss Ulrich then did a "Tambourine Danse."

Marjorie Van Allen appeared as a ballerina again in a "Ballet Poeme" with Ellen Bromfield, Diane Ackerman, Patricia Edmonstone, Ria Anne Senokozlieff, Sasa Stoodt, Sigrid Meisre, Mary Elizabeth McConnell, Marian Idle, Ruth Franklin, Charlene Holler, Dorothy O'Donnell and Jayne Bushnell as the dancers.

Closing number on the dancing program was Miss Battin's own appearance in "The Enchanted Harp" in which she was accompanied by Mrs. J. A. Herbert, harpist.

The finale was the appearance of the Legion drum corps, color guard, majorettes and a student parade, followed by the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by Mrs. Charles Anglin.

Dale Stevens's orchestra played for the dancing.

House Passes 20 Per Cent Withholding Tax With Partial Forgiveness.

completely for single persons with incomes up to $2,500 and married persons up to $8,200. The liabilities of others are substantially reduced.

Those not made fully current by the abatement would continue to pay as in the past, but there would be no forced payment of more than a year's taxes within one year.

Wage and salary earners, except members of the armed services, agricultural labor, ministers and domestic services, would have 20 per cent deducted from their pay envelopes and salary checks, such collections covering both income and victory taxes.

All taxpayers would be required to file final tax returns as at present on or before March 15 following the close of the taxable year, and on the basis of this return, adjustments would be made for differences between the estimated or withheld tax and the correct tax.

Payments made by taxpayers on March 15 and June 15 this year would be treated as payments on the tax liabilities against 1943 income. Taxpayers required to make declarations on their estimated tax would file their first declaration for 1943 on September 15, and those desiring to amend estimates may file new declarations on December 15.

After July 1 the victory tax would be 3 per cent instead of 5 per cent.

Here's Tax Dope, If You Can Dope It Out

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The house-approved compromise Robertson-Forand tax bill in a nutshell:

Cancels the first 19 percentage points of the 1942 tax rate, on which taxpayers based what they owed when they filed last March 15.

Because 90 per cent of the taxpayers paid taxes at a rate no greater than 19 percentage points, it would cancel all of their 1942 tax liability and would make them completely current by crediting taxes collected from them this year against their 1943 liability.

Taxpayers who last March 15 paid at a rate greater than 19 per cent, would receive the same cancellation, and would only be current to that extent. They would, however, have to pay the difference in percentage points next March 15—or a year late, as in the past—and to that extent would never become current.

Persons who receive their income by pay checks would be subjected to a 20 per cent withholding levy starting July 1. This would apply to the amount left after an exemption of $26 a week for married persons, $11 for single, and $8 for each dependent, had been subtracted. All money collected would be credited against taxes owed with adjustments later for over or underpayment.

Domestics, service men, farm laborers and the clergy would be exempt from the withholding levy, paying a year late as in the past.

Persons in the armed services would pay no taxes on the first $3,500 of their service pay, personal exemptions included.

solidly against the board which he terms prejudiced.

Ickes yesterday ordered on a six-day-week all mines which have received coal price adjustments to compensate for the extra wages—and some saw that as a possible way out for the UMW which seeks wage increases of $2-a-day and portal-to-portal underground pay, among other things. The sixth day's time-and-a-half would provide more pay for miners than the $2-a-day increase sought.

But operator spokesmen insisted most of the mines already were on such a schedule, and others pointed out that even if that paved the way for peace, any permanent agreement reached involving wage increases would have to be submitted to the board for approval.

All Fletcher's Castoria Called In by Company

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Withdrawal of all Fletcher's Castoria in the hands of consumers and retailers was ordered today by the Centaur company, makers of the product.

In a warning, published as an advertisement in daily newspapers, the company said:

". . . It has been discovered that all such Fletcher's Castoria which has been shipped since March 1, 1943, contains a foreign ingredient which causes nausea and vomiting.

"As neither consumers nor retailers can tell the difference between packages made before March 1st and those produced thereafter, it is necessary to withdraw and recover all Fletcher's Castoria outstanding."

The company will refund all money paid for the product.

peacetime population of about 500,000.

In addition to being an important industrial center, Dortmund is the terminus of a canal leading to Ems and is the seat of the Fortmunden union, one of the largest general industrial combines in Germany. It is also the site of a great oil plant.

Machines, railroad cars and locomotives are the principal finished products of Dortmund's factories. Coal, iron, steel and beer are among its other products.

The RAF in daylight yesterday bombed the electric power station at The Hague, Netherlands, and in the evening bombed the railway yards at Abbeville, France.

Last night RAF night fighter planes went up in coveys to fight off German raiders who dropped incendiary bombs on an East Anglian town. First reports said there were no casualties.

The 8th U. S. air force raid on Antwerp was notable in that for the first time full American squadrons flew with their own command along with their bombers. Three escorting planes failed to return, but air force headquarters announced not a single bomber was lost. Several enemy fighter planes were reported shot down.

For Lieut. William Corson, 25, of Middletown, Ohio, bombardier of the Fortress "Mizpah," it was a revenge raid for his older brother, Dan W. Corson, who was pilot of the "Danellen," named for their parents, which did not return from the Dec. 20 raid on Romilly.

GHOST OF MY LOVE +

By Oren Arnold

CHAPTER XXX

Rosemary shrieked in terror.

"Stay back! Stay inside!" That shout came from Bill.

She had run half way down the lobby stairs. She was wearing pajamas, that, in the ghostly dimness made her phantom-like.

"What is it, Bill? Where are you?"

His voice was farther away now. "Stay inside! You might get shot!"

"What's happening? . . . Oh!"

She was still for a long moment. No more shots came. But the singing up Cody street at the soldiers' campfire had stopped, she heard the sound of running feet and men calling.

Somebody had raided the hotel vault. She realized that much now. It cast a freezing spell of despair over her, as if she hadn't had trouble enough! She and Bill had been entrusted with the $22,000. Uncle Pete Quincy knew about it. So did Sergeant Wayne and the men of his original party. All manner of possibilities streamed through her mind in the seconds she waited in the dark.

* * *

"Bill!" she yelled.

Nobody answered.

"Oh! Bill, are you hurt? Where are you?"

The running men came closer. The street seemed to be overrun with people, all talking or shouting at once. Rosemary dared come through the lobby and onto the porch.

Away up the slope of Cody street the fire still blazed high enough to make fantastic shadows as the men moved about. Automatically she ran down the stone steps and joined the soldiers, oblivious of her pajamas and uncovered feet. She saw a crowd forming down hill a few yards, everybody questioning everybody else.

"Bill!" she called again. "Oh Bill!"

Men turned then; recognized her.

"It's Miss Lee!"

"Don't let her come in here," Bill ordered. Then louder, "Rosemary, where are you?"

"Bill, are you hurt?"

He came through the crowd. He bore the marks of the fight he had been in. Blood caked on his face; but he was not seriously injured. He went straight to Rosemary, took her arm and led her back to the porch. In a moment, Uncle Pete Quincy had joined them. Uncle Pete's eyes were afire with wrath.

"I am not hurt," Bill said. "But something has happened. Something very tragic. He tried to raid the vault, Rosemary. In fact he did. Took the key from my room, some time tonight. He probably thought all of us were up at the camp fire. I heard the door creaking open."

"But Bill I—the shots—who—"

"I tiptoed down and tried to stop him. He emptied his gun. I'm luckier than I deserve. But it was almost dark there in the corridor. He took the money and fled anyhow. He—"

"Oh! . . . Oh Bill, I was responsible for that money! It belonged to the British boys. They—who could possibly have stolen it? What happened? Who shot outside?"

"I did, mum!" Uncle Pete spoke up, He still held a rifle. "I shot, and I shot to kill. I won't have nobody raidin' my hotel!"

"Your shots were accurate, Uncle Pete," Bill said, quietly now. "Both struck him. The man is dead."

"Had it coming to him!"

"I agree. Rosemary—that man is Harry Boyle."

Rosemary made no outcry. No demonstration.

"I imagine," Bill added, "it was an act of desperation. He was ruined here, and he knew it. He had lost his play; lost your love, or never had it. In a craving for revenge, he—"

"Harry knew about that money!" Rosemary whispered, in awe. "I—I remember. I told him myself! I had no idea he—"

"It's all over now. Don't worry. Not ever again, Rosemary. Never."

Bill left her with the two women draftsmen, who had heard the commotion and come downstairs. He went to tell the soldiers what to do. The money was returned to the safe under armed guard. The body of Harry Boyle was started to Option in an army truck with an escort. Many questions had to be answered. Finally Bill allowed Rosemary and the women to doctor his own wounds. It took an hour or more.

All at once the excitement was done. The ghost town of Lightning was quiet again. Bill stood on the hotel porch, one arm around Rosemary, listening to Sergeant Wayne who had come last of all to pay formal respects.

"Thanks, sergeant," Bill said. "Nothing more to do tonight, I believe. Tomorrow, and thereafter—lots of work, my friend. And uh- one detail."

"Yes sir?"

"Within a few days, maybe a week, please have the old town church especially clean. Altar and seats restored. There's going to be a wedding. Bad days are over here, Wayne. This is going to be a happy town!"

"Wedding, sir? May I ask whose?"

"My own. Good-night."

The sergeant saluted and went away. Uncle Pete walked once more toward his corral, mumbling, disappearing in the darkness.

Bill lifted Rosemary's chin, kissed her where the dimple was, and kissed her on the lips. Then he held her a long while there in the fading light of the campfire.

Advertising Seen As Big Factor In Postwar Planning

CHICAGO—(INS)—Advertising must play an increasingly greater part in developing production of war material and in building the foundation for postwar economy, it was declared by speakers at the Midwest conference of the National Industrial Advertisers association.

Herbert V. Mercready, president of the N. I. A. A. and advertising manager of the Magnus Chemical company told the meeting that while the government has eased up somewhat in its adverse attitude to wartime advertising, advertisers must not relax.

"Only if industrial advertising justifies itself as the force which it really is, will it receive the credit and respect by the public and the government alike which it truly deserves," he said.

Commenting on the regulation issued by the government concerning justifiable advertising, Mr. Mercready warned that the mistakes "which the other fellow makes" can have a disastrous effect on the advertising profession.

"About the only people who can't use our money service are those who require more than a thousand dollars or less than ten.

All others find just what they're looking for here . . . and when."

Grease Stained Coveralls Hide Navy's Heroes

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO—A pair of coveralls and a grease-smeared face aren't necessarily symbolic of greatness, but dozens of U. S. Navy aviation maintenance school's workers in Chicago happen to be heroes whose exploits in the Pacific have gone heralded around the world.

Quiet and modest, these young navy stalwarts are working at instruction or training in the aviation shops.

Among them are men who have won the Distinguished Flying Cross, who have been cited for notable acts of bravery at sea and in the skies. They have stood unflinchingly under fire at the very brink of death.

They are strong rugged young men, loath to talk of their victories — except perhaps in the banter and pun manner characteristic of healthy young Americans.

Among them for instance, is Thomas W. Merrit, of Detroit, who is known as "chief" and who wears the DFC. He was radio operator and gunner in a dive bomber engaged in an operation against a Jap carrier which was sunk.

James La Vaughn Shinn, 21, of Sturgis, Mich., another enrollee, was a member of the maintenance crew of famous Lieut. Com. Edward J. O'Hare.

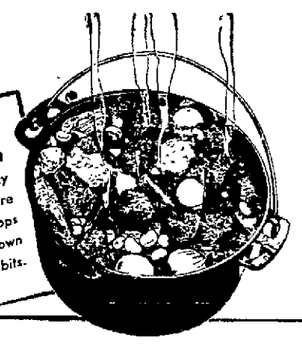
On the dinner tables of America last night there were a lot of meat stews where there used to be fancy steaks; a lot of meat pies where there used to be roasts and chops . . . America-at-War buckles down to an era of new eating habits.



MEAT under Rationing

Rationing is just a good old American way of cutting the family pie into even wedges to make it go 'round.

Military demands have become more pressing . . . civilian appetites have been whetted by harder work, and pocketbooks have expanded . . . Lend-Lease needs have become greater.

It is necessary to balance the total military, civilian and Lend-Lease demand for meat against the total supply. Rationing is a way of dividing the civilian part of that supply among all the people.

Conscientious and patriotic American women can make rationing work.

What about meat?

Why is it so important in the diet?

Why should I serve it often?

How many of my red stamps should I spend for it?

Here's the Nutritional Side of It

Good nutrition requires an adequate daily supply of proteins.

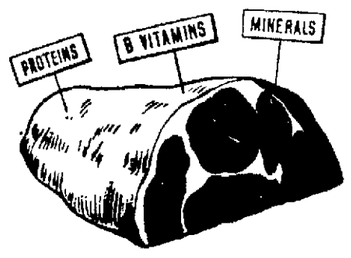
Nutritionists recommend that approximately 12 of the 16 points allowed per person per week under red stamp rationing should go for protein foods—the balance for fats.

If you spend 12 of your 16 points on meat, cheese and canned fish, you'll get approximately 65 per cent of your minimum protein requirement in the form of biologically complete proteins of the highest value.

The balance of the proteins needed for an adequate diet can come readily from nonrationed protein foods such as poultry, eggs, fresh fish, milk, cereals, certain vegetables, and the proteins found in all other foods, except sugar and fats.

Meat has always been man's preferred protein food. Other protein foods of biologic adequacy are: milk, eggs, poultry, fish and cheese. All of these should be used to round out your protein supply.

Among vegetable protein foods, the soybean has the highest nutritive value. Beans, peas and nuts can be used to furnish a portion of the daily protein requirement.



A regular supply of proteins, B vitamins and minerals is depended upon both for military and civilian diets. These nutritional essentials are not stored in the body to any appreciable extent; must be supplied in the daily foods you eat.

TIPS ON PLANNING RATIONED MEALS

- Spend approximately 12 of your 16 red stamp points on meat and other rationed protein foods.
- Supplement these with nonrationed protein foods.
- Serve meat often, rather than in an occasional "splurge."
- Extend meat with other good foods in such dishes as meat stews, meat pies, hash, croquettes, meat loaves, cereals, spaghetti, macaroni, etc.
- Learn how deliciously you can prepare any of the meat cuts available. (Send for new booklet offered below.)
- Remember, all cuts of meat, regardless of point value, contain the same essential nutrients.

MEAT PRICES—The government has established uniform "ceiling prices" (maximum wholesale and retail cost per pound) on pork. Retailers are required to display retail pork prices, and cannot legally charge more than the amounts shown. Uniform "ceilings" at retail on beef, veal, lamb and mutton are to be put into effect.

Meat supplies complete high-quality proteins with a variety of flavors which appeal to most appetites. You will wish to depend on meat for a major part of your daily protein need. Meat also contains essential B vitamins (thiamine, riboflavin, niacin) and important minerals (iron, copper, phosphorus).

You and Your Meat-Man

"Playing the game" with rationing means that you "play the game" with your meat-man too. Not cooperating with your meat-man in the use of those little red stamps undermines the entire war food program.

A housewife who gets meat and other foods without giving stamps, or who gets special cuts of meat at fancy prices, is apt to think that her retailer is simply being considerate of an old and valued customer. She does not realize that she is encouraging her retailer to risk his business reputation, to betray his fellow citizens and to make himself liable to a fine up to $5,000, or up to two years' imprisonment, or both.

The retailer who sticks by his guns and lives up to the regulations is a real patriot and deserves all the support he can get from informed and patriotic consumers.

Here's how law-abiding housewives can help retailers:

1. Buy no meat or other rationed foods except with ration stamps.

2. Pay no more than government ceiling prices which are required, or soon will be required to be posted in all retail stores.

3. Buy only from reputable retailers who obtain their meat exclusively from licensed slaughterers.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, MAY 5, 1943.

Odd, but it seems that only busy men can find time to perform additional community service.

It is being rumored around that some of the more persistent liquor store patrons are now being urged to join share-the-rye clubs.

After reading Ernie Pyle's description of hardships in Tunisia that proposed senate committee junket may be postponed until greater "social gains" have been attained there.

Prices 'Practically Out of Control'

ADMISSION by the Office of Price Administration that prices—particularly in the food line—are "practically out of control" should occasion no surprise, although it may well cause a shudder of apprehension as to what will be coming along in another few months unless more drastic action is taken by the federal government to head off what has already become serious reduction in money value as related to commodity purchases.

It has been known right along that mounting wages and increasing prices go hand in hand, yet governmental effort has been almost wholly devoted to the impossible task of keeping down prices without equalizing action to hold down production costs—in which wages is a controlling item.

Farmers are not only confronted by a labor shortage, due to higher pay in industrial occupations, but all employers face a similar situation in the operation of necessary but non-military business. They are drained of employes who are attracted by temporary higher pay and are themselves restrained from increasing wages and salaries of employes they might wish to keep.

It has been the contention of coal miners, in their demands for wage increases, that higher living costs make greater earnings necessary. According to OPA the same attitude is being taken by all other major labor organizations—and the end is by no means in sight.

There has been talk about "rolling back prices to the May 15, 1942 level" but this seems as little likely of accomplishment as would be the equally necessary action of rolling back war wages to a specified date.

OPA suggestion that consumer co-operation in the field of ceiling price enforcement will be necessary appears as impracticable as an earlier proposal of an "honor system" to curb pleasure driving by eastern motorists and to restrict driving speed to 35 miles an hour.

A firmly entrenched buying habit is to either pay the price asked or do without—and it appears that "doing without" will become an increasing practice among millions of Americans whose income is not subject to raises commensurate with advances in commodity prices.

Bond Buyers Are Also Taxpayers

READINESS with which people all over the country responded to the call of their government to buy bonds during the recent drive for $13,000,000,000 for war financing from this source, should inspire congress to lose no further time in enacting a tax bill suited to war needs and placed on a pay-as-you-go basis, for which a large majority of citizens have expressed preference.

With relatively few exceptions public response to the urgent request to buy bonds, out of earnings and savings, has reflected willingness to support the war effort to the fullest possible extent.

Mansfield and Richland county take place with many other communities in bond-buying in excess of quotas and the total of more than $8,000,000 reached in this county evidences widespread interest among local people.

Now, however, it seems only fair to ask that congress act with equal good faith in ending the present uncertainty about income tax obligations of 1942 and decide on the proposed withholding tax to be effective hereafter, so that individual incomes and reserves can be intelligently adjusted to requirements of bond buying, tax paying and living costs.

Dangerous Crossing Unguarded

A MOVE to require installation of warning flashers at the Baltimore & Ohio railroad's grade crossing on the Springmill road between here and Shelby quickly follows an auto crash in which three persons were killed last Friday night.

Action properly originates in Shelby, which is within five miles of this dangerous crossing, and the co-operation of the Richland county auto club is promised.

While traffic on this road is not heavy, accidents at this particular crossing have been entirely too frequent in the past and there can be little excuse on the part of the state utilities commission to allow such a hazardous grade crossing to remain unguarded.

Customary attitude of railroad companies is to resist such efforts at public protection as long as possible but the fact remains that every grade crossing, urban and rural, should be sufficiently guarded to assure against accidents to motorists exercising ordinary care.

Plenty of Coffee Awaiting Shipment

AMERICA is gaining control of vast quantities of coffee, but how soon it will reach the domestic markets is not predictable.

The United States is completing purchase of unshipped portions of Brazil's coffee quotas for 1941 and 1942 in compliance with the agreement between the two nations entered into last fall. The United States is helping to maintain the economies of Latin nations by buying surpluses accumulating because of war conditions.

The coffee purchase will be made through the Commodity Credit corporation and will be exclusively from accredited coffee exporters, according to the standards of the New York Coffee exchange. The transactions will be conducted through regular commercial channels and provide precautions against adversely affecting the established coffee markets.

The United States is to acquire unshipped portions of the quota for 1941-42, or 2,695,000 bags, and as much as possible of the 1942-43 basic quota of 9,300,000 bags which remains unshipped by private traders at the end of the quota year on September 30, 1943. Incidentally, each bag of coffee weighs 132 pounds.

It was the New York Times that summed up a Jap advance in China by saying: "The flies have conquered another area of fly-paper."

THE LITTLE LOST BLACK SHEEP

Manpower Demands to Continue

By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON— The manpower situation is still serious, despite a great deal of evidence which convinces many of our people that the war production job is being curtailed. It is perfectly true that our manufacturers have done such a magnificent job in many lines that we are running way ahead of our ability to transport the war supplies made to the various theaters where they can be used.

Only two items are not being overproduced, using the word subject to the modification just stated. As said before in these dispatches these are ships and planes. Actually we are piling up planes, so that in a way it can be said that the only thing we are not producing as many of as we would like is ships.

This is not a reflection on the shipbuilders. They too have done a magnificent job. They have kept well ahead of the sinkings. But that boils down to the fact that we have only increased available shipping by this differential, and despite building of ships far in excess of what anyone had hoped there are still not anything like enough ships.

WHILE most of our planes are now flown to where they are needed there are two factors which are complicating the program, and between them have resulted in the piling up in this country of a tremendous number of planes. In other words, they have resulted in our producing far more planes than we have sent to the various theaters of war.

One of these is the fact that up to now the shipping space to the various quarters of the world has not been sufficient to take care of enough ground crews and supplies for the planes.

This means that the shipment of more planes than we have been sending would merely result in the planes being stored in the various war zones instead of being stored here.

The decision as to what is to be shipped is of course a military one. It is almost impossible for a layman to criticise it. The layman, no matter how trained, does not have adequate information as to what is happening here, there and yonder in the war, and what is expected to happen.

BUT the fact remains that we are producing planes at a greater rate than we can use them, even when the other complication—the necessity of changing planes after they have been "finished" by the prime contractor so as to install the latest devices or improvements war conditions have made necessary—is taken into consideration.

Now the facts just set forth are behind the conviction in many quarters that war production is being slowed down and hence that the manpower shortage is evaporating. But this is only part of the picture.

High officials know of the changes in the types of war production that are contemplated. They assert with considerable emphasis that there will continue to be a man power shortage—that we are going to need all the labor we can get and more besides.

They say that we may stop the production of certain items—as for instance when the Russians recently cancelled an order for 4,000 tanks—but that we will need every worker in any plant that runs out of orders in some other line. Obviously details as to what is wanted next cannot be given but we must take their word for the main point.

Discussing Workers

WE WATCHED them as they clicked along the hall, as sleek and smart a bunch of tricky hats, tapping heels and eager eyes as ever signed to fight for Uncle Sam. Yet, even as we watched—two women and five men who had been picked to shake these youngsters into line—we heaved a lusty sigh. Then laughed, and shook our heads.

"But why should we do that?" said wise, warm hearted Anne who always knew what jinx had gummed the line.

"Why is it always ten times harder to break in a woman than 'tis a man? It isn't that they're stupid or more careless, Bill. Or don't the work . . . "

"Anything but!" grinned big Bill, oldest and best beloved of our own crew. "'Smatter of fact, I'd rather have a smart and willing girl than any man."

"Me too," said Ed. "And so would any man I've ever met," with all the others, men and women chorusing agreement.

"A woman's far more slick and careful than a man."

"She'll work circles all around a boy."

"She'll think of details that a man forgets."

"And get her work done usually in half the time."

"Then what's chewing on us all," laughed Jane. "We've all seen women workers, young or old. We know the answers, since we were just lads, as clerks or bosses. And we all admit that women are as quick as men. As willing, too, to tackle any job. Almost too willing. And yet you act as if they were some special breed of snake that doesn't correspond to any human rules."

"Aw, Jane, that's laying it on pretty thick," said Bill.

"And yet I think perhaps he's hit the spot," said Anne. "There's no use fooling—men don't treat a woman worker as they treat each other. Even a forewoman'd rather work with boys than girls, no matter how efficient the girls may be. And I suspect it's usually because we women take our jobs too personally. You don't find seasoned men workers going down the hall to have themselves a "good hard cry" but even the brightest women will act up like that. I wonder why."

"I guess it's just because they're made that way," said Ed. "Since they are little shavers they are taught to feel like that. To treat their whole life like a personal affair and get their way by acting up like kids. Yet, they're not kids; their records prove that's so. It's just because they've always lived apart . . . and never learned to live like men by 'playing ball.'"

"I think you're right," said Bill. "We men and women aren't really different—it's just how we've been bred. A man learns early that he must go on—regardless. Just take the breaks, no matter how they come. But women—"

For a long moment Big Bill's eyes were bleak, and we remembered how, within a month, he'd buried two. The baby girl who'd come like a belated star. The gentle woman who had passed with dawn. Hearts broke, no matter what the sex—yet life went on. Only men learned to use a camouflage. And women—"had themselves a good hard cry."

"I guess this war is teaching us a lot of things," Anne said. "Teaching us, mostly, that we're not one half as distant as we thought. And all of us need kindness in a pinch."

We rose—stood watching as the sunset tipped the Gate. Anne's smile grew misty — quavered through tired tears. Bill's hand slipped into hers.

One Man's Opinion

—By WALTER KIERNAN

WELL I have seen Walter Huston and I have seen Joe Davies and if we are going to send one of them back to Moscow as ambassador I would recommend Huston.

* * *

Huston plays Davies in a new picture about Russia and he makes a very fine ambassador.

* * *

Of course it's true that he doesn't have any more luck in getting concessions for us from the Russians than Davies did.

* * *

But if Washington can't do it, how could Hollywood?

The plot of the picture is pretty hard to understand. Russian plots are always difficult—but there are some great scenes.

The ones we looked for with the greatest eagerness, and didn't find, were those in which Russia turns over a couple of air fields to us to bomb Japan and those in which our interned flyers are released.

* * *

With those scenes it would be a four bell picture.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

New Price Control Plan Would Lift Food Costs to Housewives

WASHINGTON—There was a lot that didn't meet the eye behind Secretary Knox's statement that he was wrong, after all, and the Truman committee right about our stupendous shipping loss of 1,000,000 tons per month—greater than all the ships built by us and the British last year.

A lot of by-play took place backstage before Knox made his correction. Some senators are now wondering whether, if things like this are fumbled, there isn't entirely too much fumbling with other things a lot more precious than public reputations.

Here is the inside story of what happened:

Before publishing its report, the Truman committee sent five copies to Secretary Knox and his chief admirals, also to Admiral Emory Land of the Maritime commission. All were notified that unless there was objection to the report it would be published in three days. In addition, a representative of the navy was allowed to read the report several weeks in advance and make any suggestions.

After the report was published, however, Admiral R. S. Edwards, assistant to Vice Admiral Fred Horne, of Naval Operations, wrote a memo for the secretary of the navy raising objections to the Truman committee's report.

Knox Sounds Off.

SECRETARY KNOX happened to have Edwards' memo on his desk just ten minutes before a press conference. And without consulting press adviser Capt. Leland Lovette, he proceeded to sound off to newsmen about the inaccuracy of the Truman committee and its estimates on shipping losses.

What Knox didn't know was that he had in his own files a copy of the Truman committee report sent well in advance, and to which he had made no objection. Also he didn't know that the Truman committee had secured its submarine disaster figures from the war shipping administration, which has good reason to know what the losses were, because its ships were sunk, and it builds replacements. Finally the Truman committee had a letter from Admiral Land certifying the accuracy of its figures.

So after reading Knox's blast, the Truman committee delegated Senator Brewster of Maine, a fellow Republican, to call on Knox. Brewster gently reminded him of the above facts, then said:

"The committee would like to have you appear before a public hearing, Mr. Secretary, to answer some questions. We feel the public is entitled to know the facts and have this confusion cleared up."

Knox, a fair-minded man when he knows all the facts, scribbled a brief statement on a piece of paper, handed it to Brewster.

"Will this do?" he said.

Brewster said it would. It was a fair and forthright acknowledgment of error.

Knox's Aides Retreat.

LATER, however, Knox's aides, red-faced, got to work. They fixed up a longer, vaguer, circumloquacious statement which would have had the effect of further confusing the public. Then Adlai Stevenson, grandson of the vice president of the United States under Grover Cleveland and one of Knox's better aides, took the statement to the Truman committee.

Members of the committee frowned. The revised statement, they felt, further befogged the issue.

"What became of the statement Secretary Knox wrote himself?" they asked.

"I threw that in the waste basket," replied Stevenson.

So the Truman committee required Stevenson to phone to the navy department and have the original statement fished out of Knox's waste basket. A little later, word came to the Truman committee that the navy would publish the admission of error exactly as Knox originally wrote it.

Unfortunately the incident has left a bad taste with the senate and other people regarding the navy's accuracy on a lot of other public statements, including escort vessels and helicopters.

OPA Civil War.

INCREASED prices for all articles sold in grocery stores are threatened by an order now under consideration in the OPA, and this order incidentally is almost causing civil war inside OPA.

The order is intended to simplify the price ceiling machinery, but it would also allow retailers to recalculate prices once a week—and the recalculation obviously would be upward.

The plan is known as the overall mark-up regulation for groceries. It has not yet been approved, or published, but already the office of price administration is split wide open over it. One member of OPA's enforcement staff has threatened to resign, saying that the order is unenforcable.

The OPA labor advisory committee is raising the roof, demanding that Administrator Prentiss Brown kill the order before it creates havoc in the households of the country, as well as in the administration of OPA.

Legal Staff Balks.

THE ENTIRE legal staff of OPA, even including one of the associate general counsels, has refused to sign the order, saying that it is both unenforcable and inflationary.

Inside the organization, it is humorously referred to as the "A&P" order," because it sets up the same kind of price adjustment machinery prevailing in the Great Atlantic & Pacific chain stores; also it was conceived by Charles H. Fleischer, former A&P sales manager for Pittsburgh.

From the housewife's viewpoint, this mark-up regulation is disturbing because it not only means price increases, but also means that grocers would no longer be obliged to post ceiling prices. Thus she would have no way of knowing whether his prices were higher than the ceilings. And the consumer would be eliminated from any participation in the drive to keep prices down.

The issue is definitely one of a business versus consumer—one in which tough-minded Leon Henderson would have acted without hesitation. Whether Prentiss Brown is tough enough to meet the issue remains to be seen.

Roving Reporter

Description of the Fighting In Tunisia Where Tired Soldiers Fall Asleep on March.

AT THE FRONT LINES IN TUNISIA—(By Wireless)—When our infantry goes into a big push in northern Tunisia each man is issued three bars of D-ration chocolate, enough to last one day. He takes no other food.

He carries two canteens of water instead of the usual one. He carries no blankets. He leaves behind all extra clothes except his raincoat. In his pockets he may have a few toilet articles. Some men carry their money. Others give it to friends to keep.

In the days that follow they live in a way that is inconceivable to us at home. They walk and fight all night without sleep. Next day they lie flat in foxholes, or hide in fields of freshly green, knee-high wheat.

If they're in the fields they dare not even move enough to dig foxholes, for that would bring the German artillery. They can't rise even for nature's calls. The German feels for them continually with his artillery.

THE SLOW DRAG of these motionless daylight hours is nearly unendurable. Lieut. Mickey Miller of Morgantown, Ind., says this lifeless waiting in a wheatfield is almost the worst part of the whole battle.

The second evening after the attack begins, C-rations and five-gallon cans of water are brought up across country in jeeps, after dark. You eat in the dark, and you can't see the can you are eating from. You just eat by feel. You make cold coffee from cold water.

One night a German shell landed close and fragments punctured 15 cans of water.

Each night enough canned rations for three meals are brought up, but when the men move on after supper most of them either lose or leave behind the next day's rations, because they're too heavy to carry. But, as they say, when you're in battle and excited you sort of go on your nerve. You don't think much about being hungry.

The men tight at night and lie low by day, when the artillery takes over its blasting job. Weariness gradually creeps over them. What sleeping they do is in daytime. But, as they say, at night it's too cold and in daytime it's too hot. Also the fury of the artillery makes daytime sleeping next to impossible. So does the heat of the sun. Some men have passed out from heat prostration. Many of them get upset stomachs from the heat.

But as the third and fourth days roll on weariness overcomes all obstacles to sleep. Men who sit down for a moment rest fall asleep in the grass. There are even men who say they can march while asleep.

Lieut. Col. Charlie Stone, of New Brunswick, N. J., actually went to sleep while standing up talking on a field telephone—not while listening, but in the middle of a spoken sentence.

When sometimes they do lie down at night the men have only their raincoats to lie on. It is cold, and the dew makes the grass as wet as rain. They don't dare start a fire to heat their food, even in daytime, for the smoke would attract enemy fire. At night they can't even light cigarets in the open, so after digging their foxholes they get down and make hoods over their heads with their raincoats, and light up under the coats.

They have plenty of cigarets. Those who run out during battle are supplied by others. Every night new supplies of water and C-rations are brought up in jeeps.

YOU CAN'T conceive how hard it is to move and fight at night. The country is rugged, the ground rough. Everything is new and strange. The nights are pitch black. You grope with your feet. You step into holes, and fall sprawling in little gullies and creeks. You trudge over plowed ground and push through waist-high shrubs. You go as a man blindfolded, feeling unsure and off balance, but you keep on going.

Through it all there is the tear of mines. The Germans have mined the country behind them beyond anything ever known before. We simply can't take time to go over each inch of ground with mine detectors, so we have to discover the mine fields by stumbling into them or driving over them. Naturally there are casualties, but they are smaller that you might think—just a few men each day.

The greatest damage is psychological—the intense watchfulness our troops must maintain.

The Germans have been utterly profligate with their mines. We dug out 400 from one field. We've found so many fields and so many isolated mines that we have run out of white tape to mark them with. But still we go on.

Daily Bible Thought

Having loved his own which were in the world, he loved them unto the end.—John 13:1.

A Farmer's Diary

By CALVIN A. BYERS

Old—and Young

I TALKED with a farmer who was plowing thick timothy sod with a team of three worn horses. They moved very slowly and the driver had to urge them on with harsh words or by throwing bits of sod.

"This is a good field," I remarked. "The soil looks right."

"Yes," he said. "The land's good enough, but a man don't make much working on the thirds."

"You rent the farm?"

"Yes. The owner—he's a funny fellow. He's old, but he's allus spendin' money on this place. Two or three years ago he put a furnace in the house. Nobody asked him to—I'd a got along with a kitchen range and a good heating stove I had. Last year he wired the whole place and put in electric fixtures. All my oil lamps junked! My grandfather used fat lamps—I've allus used coal oil and I reckon that's good enough for anybody. This electricity is a fire hazard, I'd ruther, yet, get out my old lantern. I can put that just where I want it.

"My wife tells me I'm foolish and I'd oughta change and farm newfangled. The man I rent from offered to buy me a tractor, if I'd drive it—that was two years ago. But if I'd been agoin' to farm with tractor power, I'd oughta started ten or fifteen years ago. I'll be forty next week, and the tools I started up with ain't worn out, yet. When they are, it'll be time enough to hunt something new."

I OVERTOOK a white haired, slender man, on my way to the village. He had stopped to chat with a man who was making garden. I invited him to ride.

He turned an animated, deeply furrowed, smiling face my way, and climbed aboard with alacrity. He wore a warm overcoat and his trousers were nicely creased.

"You're on the road early," I suggested.

"Oh, I've always got up early. I grew up on a farm. I'm living in the city now—just came down to see my daughters. They tell me I'm too venturesome for my age—but that's pretty funny. My grandson's going to get married. So excited he can't sleep nights. It's his first venture. He's pretty young yet—only forty-nine.

"You're not so old," I said.

"Age isn't all a matter of years. All the older people of the village are fellows of mine—that one you read in the papers about who was leading his cow, he was only 83.

"Only?"

"I'll soon be 87."

It was hard to believe him. He was informed, enthusiastic, humorously alive. His presence was like a tonic. When we parted at the street where his daughter lived, I watched him walk, easily and erect, toward the sun.

DIAPER RULING

RENO, Nev. —(U.P.)— OPA representative Dr. Rex Arlo Crider has ruled to give babies a break in the matter of diapers. His ruling is that in "rented baby pants," the baby is entitled to a reasonable fling in them without its parents being penalized.

The laundries, who are entitled to exact a deposit on them, are not permitted, he holds, to make deductions for "reasonable wear and tear," when the rented diapers are returned, nor can they exact a deposit higher than the ceiling price for the diapers rented.

CHINA MISSIONARIES SPEAK FOR A. A. U. W.

University Women Have Dinner Meeting at Park Avenue Baptist Church; John Simpson Glee Club Participates In Program.

REV. AND MRS. PEAT, missionaries in China for 36 years, were guest speakers, in the absence of their son, Frank Peat, of Bellville, for the University Women at their dinner meeting Tuesday night.

Asking the question, "How have the Chinese been able to hold the Japanese?", Rev. Peat's talk was interesting and informative. He gave a resume of the political history of China and told of the changes during the last 50 years.

Both Rev. and Mrs. Peat pointed to the Christian influence of the present China, Rev. Peat giving the background and present belief of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, and Mrs. Peat telling her audience of Madame Chiang Kai-shek. Less than one per cent of the Chinese population is Christian, but 40 per cent of the military and political leaders of China are Christian.

Miss Fannie Lew Eiler presented 25 members of the John Simpson junior high school glee club, made up of girls from the seventh and eighth grades in five musical numbers. Miss June Zoebst was the soloist in "Songs My Mother Taught Me," by Dvorak

Other selections presented by the glee club were "Barcarolle" from "The Tales of Hoffman" by Offenbach, "Shubert's Serenade," "Rosebud In the Garden," by Shubert, and "Sanctus."

The dinner, preceding the program, was served in the Sunday school rooms of the Park Avenue Baptist church, at long tables decorated with spring flowers and pastel tapers.

Announcements made at the meeting included the senior tea, to be held at the Baptist church parlors May 18 with Dean Grace Spacht of Denison university as guest speaker, and "War Books for Your Summer Reading," a talk to be given by Miss Lois MacKeller at the Y. W. C. A. May 12 at 7:30 p. m.

An auditing committee was appointed by Mrs. Charles Kuntz. That committee includes Mrs. R. J. Welsh and Mrs. Harold Burns. Routine committee reports were made by committee chairmen.

Study Club Has Dinner Party With Mrs. John F. Daley

Mrs. John F. Daley, 470 West Third street, entertained members of the Little Flower Study club Monday night with a dinner party.

When luncheon was served, the refreshment table was attractively decorated with Easter flowers. Mrs. J. J. Daley and Miss Marie Hecht were associate hostesses. Mrs. J. F. Ehalt presided at the table.

Following the diner, a short business meeting was held with Mrs. Ehalt presiding. Mrs. J. A. Vassar, bond chairman, gave a report on the sale of bonds.

Late in the afternoon, contract was played at three tables. Score prizes were won by Mrs. T. J. McDermott, Mrs. J. O. Hanley and Mrs. Marion Downs.

On May 17 the club will have a business meeting and election of officers at the home of Miss Veronica Hanley, Cline avenue.

Finding its former offices in the University of Maryland Agricultural building inadequate for Maryland's "increasingly important war time role as a food producer," the rambling tavern was formerly occupied "for the duration" by the state offices of the Maryland United States department of agriculture war board and agricultural conservation committee.

The old inn was built in 1798 on what is now the University of Maryland campus and restored in 1939.
